MAN KILLS WIFE, SELF

Today

An Eye Weighs 20 Tons
It Was Epic, It Is Now Epia
G. O. P. Leopard, and Spots
Lasting and Binding? How Come?

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1934, by King Features Syndicate, Inc. International copyright and all other rights reserved.

YESTERDAY THE Corning Glass Works at Corning, N. Y., began pouring the "eye" two hundred inches wide made for a gigantic telescope reflector to carry the sight and mind of man inconceivable distances into space. For twenty-one days glass for the reflector has been kept in a great furnace, at a temperature of twenty-eight hundred degrees, gradually "cooking" to the proper uniform degree.

And that cooking process was preceded by years of study, calculation, preparation for the great disk of boro-silicate glass, sixteen feet and eight inches wide, weighing forty thousand pounds.

The news of this "pouring," the knowledge that the cosmic "eye" will bring to astronimical science will be remembered with gratitude thousands of years hence when all else that we now discuss, except the ability of man to govern himself, will have been forgotten.

With the new giant reflector man's sight will travel millions of "light years," beyond the recently discovered "new universes," that preceding generations called star dust nebulae. Regions that lie quadrillions of miles outside of our Milky Way universe will seem close by when the sight of astronomers travels into space with this new eye. It is expected to reveal details of the universe that are THREE HUNDRED MILLION LIGHT YEARS distance from our earth.

Three hundred million light years is a long way. Multiply the number of seconds in a year by one hundred and eighty-six thousand, then multiply the result by three hundred millions, and you have it, about six quadrillions of miles, plus one hundred and seventy-five trillions, not allowing anything for the three hundred million leap years.

Sometimes you think the universe is unnecessarily large. But even when you get out there, three hundred million light years distant you will be just starting. Einstein says the universe folds over and comes back.

If so, thank heavens. But what is beyond the fold and outside of it?

Have you heard about "EPIA"? It is a new arrangement of letters invented by Harry L. Hopkins, administrator of federal emergency relief for President Roosevelt, and it means "end poverty in America." Your mind hops back to Mr. Upton Sinclair's "EPIC," which meant "END POVERTY IN CALIFORNIA," until the election ended "EPIC."

Mr. Hopkins is a powerful man, of strong will, great energy, and nobody will "pooh-pooh" his plan to abolish American poverty. He would spend public billions on "subsistence homesteads" and rural rehabilitation programs, move families from poor lands to good lands, where they might prosper; lend government billions to buy tools, equip new homesteads, buy livestocks, etc.

It is a benevolent program, and who can say that it will not work some day if government money lasts?

Many, however, feel that before you "end poverty" among human beings, you must end poverty of intelligence in the minds of men, and that the way to discourage want is to stimulate ambition.

Senator Borah, a sincere, independent American, wants the Republican party to reorganize itself, giving its "liberals" control.

He would drive out the "reactionaries." If he did that, what and how many would he have left? Strip the blubber from a whale, humps from a two-hump camel and you have little whale or camel remaining.

And if Mr. Borah's Republi-

Book Gives Speer Plot Clue

MURDER PLOT DUPLICATE IN NOVEL

By JOHN H. NOONAN
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

Greenfield, Dec. 3—"The Public School Murder."

An English novel of that title turned up as a new and surprising clue today at the secret inquest into the death of Doctor Elliott Speer, headmaster of Mt. Hermon School for Boys, Northfield.

Perusal of a copy of th novel revealed that the author, R. C. Woodthorpe, wove his plot around a school principal, who was slain by a single shot through the window of his study on the campus.

The book, carried into the inquest by District Attorney Joseph T. Bartlett, was taken from the private library of Dr. Speer. It had been borrowed at various times by attaches of the school.

Dr. Speer died nearly three months ago in exactly the manner described in the novel.

In one chapter of the book where one of the school teachers at the English school is reconstructing the crime, the teacher placed himself in the position of the murderer:

"There at the window, then wide open, the headmaster sat writing. The light shone upon him; he was a conspicuous target. Here, possibly just where I am standing, the murderer took aim. No, probably he was much closer to the window.

"He crept stealthily along the edge of the grass until he was within a yard or two. One shot was enough at such close—"

A few pages later the reconstruction continues:

"The man who had the rifle came almost right up to the window. Then he fired. One shot was enough. Then the problem became, what was done with the gun?"

In the novel, the gun is disposed

WALTHAM FIRE ROUTS FIVE

Three women and two men were driven to the street today by a $5000 fire that destroyed $2000 worth of women's hats in a three-story brick building at Moody and Chestnut streets, Waltham.

Peter Walsh, 60, who is compelled to use crutches, was assisted from the second floor apartment by Reserve Officer Leo Qualters. From this apartment also fled Miss Nellie Nystrom. From the third floor Miss Ella Adams made her way to the street.

In the millinery shop of Israel Davis, on the ground floor, Miss Helen Macy, of 180 Brown street, Waltham, was dressing the window when she saw the flicker of flames reflected in the glass and discovered the rear of the shop burning.

She shouted an alarm to the proprietor and they both fled, Davis also losing his own hat and coat, he said.

MRS. CHARLOTTE W. SPEER DR. ELLIOTT SPEER

Secret evidence unearthed by state detectives was to be disclosed today in the inquest on the murder of Dr. Elliott Speer, headmaster of Mt. Hermon School at Northfield. Mrs. Charlotte Welles Speer, widow of the slain educator, was among the witnesses who were heard. This picture was taken while the couple were vacationing in England.

Head of Closed Lowell Bank Weds Secretly

Lowell, Dec. 3—With his pretty young secretary the bride, Judge James E. O'Donnell, 58, former mayor, state representative and president of the closed Middlesex National Bank, today was revealed in an elopement.

The secret romance rivaled in interest the elopement of Mayor Thomas H. Braden with a water department clerk several years ago.

Neither Judge O'Donnell nor Miss Keene have been at the office for the two weeks and queries at the home of each bring replies that their whereabouts "are not exactly known."

On the register of an Atlantic City hotel, however, stands the entry, "Mr. and Mrs. James E. O'Donnell of Lowell."

Edward O'Donnell, twin brother of the justice, declared today that he knew nothing of his brother's marriage. At the judge's home, 11 Nesmith street, callers were told that he was out of town and that the date of his return was uncertain.

The new Mrs. O'Donnell is the second wife of the justice. He was first wed to the former Mary H. Murphy in 1906. She died five years ago. He holds membership in the socially prominent Yorick Club, Lowell Council, Knights of Columbus; American, Massachusetts and Lowell bar associations and is president of the Lowell Boston University Club. He had no children.

It was Miss Keene's first marriage.

EX-HOTEL MAN KILLS SELF

His death followed by four years the death of his son by a shotgun on a Nebraska ranch which afterwards led to a decision of federal court that the son died of accident rather than suicide.

FACED LOSS OF SIGHT

Medical Examiner Benjamin W. Rudman pronounced death due to suicide. He gave as a reason the failing health of Ruisseau which threatened to deprive him of his eyesight.

$41 TAX SEEN IN PAY RESTORAL

Mayor Mansfield will include $5,000,000 in the 1935 municipal budget for the restoration of wage cuts to city employes, he announced today.

The mayor said this would mean an increase of $2.90 in the tax rate, indicating that the present tax rate of $37.10 will be advanced to $41 for the coming year.

Mayor Mansfield said he was undecided whether or not he would ask the legislature to continue pay cuts, in the event that such a course becomes necessary.

TROOPERS TO GUARD POLLS IN REVERE

Revere polls will be guarded by State troopers tomorrow as a result of an order issued today by Captain James F. Mahoney, commander of the State police uniformed forces.

The state troopers were ordered into Revere following the receipt of requests from candidates for mayor. They declared in letters to Governor Ely that the city is "infested with racketeers."

In one of the bitterest campaigns in the history of the city gang control in Revere has been made an issue that is expected to bring out a record vote.

Much political capital has been made of six unsolved gang killings since 1929, including the slaying of Nate Siegal and Jack Darrish in the last few months.

Former State Senator Conde Brodbine, in a letter to Governor Ely, asked that state police be assigned to Revere polling places "so that citizens may not be intimidated."

In campaign speeches Brodbine charged Mayor Andrew A. Casassa with protecting gangsters. Mayor Casassa replied:

"There are no rackets in Revere. Racketeers may live here, but they do not operate here. The police see to that, at my order."

The other two candidates for mayor of Revere, City Treasurer James M. O'Brien and Representative Thomas Carroll, also accused

SOMERVILLE SHOOTING IS WITNESSED BY WOMAN

Enraged because his wife, Mrs. Bernice Holman, 50, refused to return home with him, Marsden C. Holman, 50, of 17 Highland avenue, Arlington, a florist, shot and killed her today in West Somerville and then took his own life with the revolver.

The murder and suicide occurred in the kitchen at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Forest E. Woodward, on the second floor at 41 Upland road, while Mrs. Lydia Woodward looked on, in horror.

Although police said there were four empty chambers in the .32-calibre Colt revolver, only two shots were fired into Mrs. Holman's chest and one into Holman's temple.

According to Mrs. Woodward, whose husband is Mrs. Holman's cousin, Mrs. Holman arrived yesterday afternoon at the Woodward home and asked to stay, stating that she had quarrelled with the florist.

REMAINED ALL NIGHT

She remained all night and was assisting Mrs. Woodward today with the housework when Holman arrived shortly before 11 a. m.

Holman came up the back stairs to the second floor apartment, knocked on the door and was admitted by Mrs. Woodward, the latter told police.

He walked rapidly over to where Mrs. Holman was standing in the kitchen with a dry mop in her hand. Both Holman and Mrs. Holman were deaf mutes, Mrs. Woodward said, but she read Holman's lips when he demanded that his wife return home with him.

OPENS FIRE

She refused. Holman immediately drew out the revolver and began firing. His wife sank to the floor and died instantly. Then turning the revolver against his temple, Holman fired again and also fell dead on the kitchen floor.

GERMANY AND FRANCE IN "PEACE AGREEMENT" OVER SAAR

PACT SIGNED BY DELEGATES OF BOTH NATIONS

By Associated Press

Rome, Dec. 3 (AP)—France and Germany today signed "an agreement of peace" over the Saar Basin territory.

By the terms of this agreement, which is expected to end the grave controversy over the future sovereignty of the district, Germany will pay France 900,000,000 francs (approximately $59,400,000) and 11,000,000 tons of coal for France's mines and private credits in the Saar Basin and, furthermore, Germany guarantees equal rights to voters and non-voters among all the inhabitants of the Saar regardless of race, religion or language.

PACT IN TWO PARTS

Receiving the foreign press this afternoon, the Spanish delegate to the committee of three, Lopez Olivan, told the correspondents that the agreement was divided into two parts, political and economic.

The political accord, he said, is divided into three parts, as follows:

1—Germany guarantees to extend to non-voters the same standing as that of voters.

2—All have equal rights to social insurance and state assistance.

3—The inhabitants of the Saar have equal rights regardless of language, race and religion.

The financial accord, said the Spanish delegate, calls for the payment by Germany of 900,000,000 francs for the mines, which are the property of the French government, and for the private credits held by France, as well as a payment of 11,000,000 tons of coal from the Saar mines.

BOTH COUNTRIES SIGN

Olivan said that the committee of three, composed of himself, Baron Pompeo Aloisi of Italy and Ambassador Cantillo of Argentina, reached a direct agreement between the two interested parties which had been signed today by the German and French ambassadors.

"This is a success for the League of Nations," said Olivan.

SOVIET ORDERS PLOT 'PURGE'

laf Molotoff, president of the Council of Commissars, and other officials.

The possibility that an external plot was back of Kiroff's slaying appeared dissipated by an official announcement that the assassin is a Russian and a former Communist.

KILLER CONFESSES

Kiroff, member of the political bureau of the Communist party and secretary of the party's central committee, important posts, was shot to death in the Soviet building here Saturday.

A government communique said the assassin was Leonid Nicolieff, 30, formerly employed by the Workers and Peasants inspection bureau.

Nicolieff, the announcement said, has confessed the crime and is still being questioned. No intimation was given as to his motive or present political affiliations.

OTHERS SLAIN

Flags were placed at half staff throughout the Soviet union in honor of Kiroff, the third Communist leader to be assassinated here since the establishment of Bolshevism and the first in more than 15 years.

Other Soviet officials have been assassinated elsewhere, however. Peter Voikoff, Soviet minister to Poland, was assassinated June 7, 1927, in Warsaw by a Russian student. Vaslov Vorovsky, unrecognized Soviet envoy to the Lausanne conference, was assassinated May 11, 1923, at Lausanne by a Swiss former officer of the Czar.

Moses Voladarsky, member of the presidium of the Leningrad Soviet, was killed in 1918, two months before Mikhail Uritsky, chief of the Leningrad Cheka, met a similar fate.

Workers at meetings in many cities demanded vengeance for Kiroff's death. The government Saturday announced:

"The slayer was sent by the enemies of the working class."

The dead leader's body, lying in state in Uritsky palace, has been viewed by thousands. The funeral will be held Thursday in Moscow where his ashes will be interred under the Kremlin wall, near the tomb of Lenin.

Former Hotel Manager Ends Life With Gun

SHOT RINGS OUT

In less than a minute a shot rang out and Daggett rushed to the hallway to find the former hotel man dead.

Ruisseau severed his connections with the old Woodcock when prohibition sounded the demise of the famous hostelry 15 years ago. He had been connected since with various enterprises.

The court contest over the shotgun death of his son was waged over a $20,000 insurance policy, of which the youth's mother was claimant against the Connecticut General Life Insurance Company. The company had claimed the son's death a suicide, thereby invalidating the policy. Nebraska authorities made an official finding of accidental shooting.

Ruisseau was related by marriage to Patrick McGovern, builder of the New York subway and a figure in many Boston construction projects, including part of the Cambridge-Boston tunnel tube.

Young Ruisseau was married to McGovern's daughter, Miss Mary G. McGovern, in 1924. The couple had separated before the younger Ruisseau met death in Nebraska.

BOOK CLUE IN SPEER DEATH

of in a pond on the school grounds. Mt. Hermon School also has a pond within its boundaries, but it has been drained twice in vain efforts to find the weapon that killed Doctor Speer.

Each person who borrowed a book from Principal Speer's private library was noted in an index with the name of the book included.

It is believed District Attorney Bartlett and state detectives hold the theory that some person close to Dr. Speer, but inimical to him, was inspired to commit the murder last September 14, after reading the book from Dr. Speer's own library.

Proof that a letter purporting to have been written by Dr. Speer is a forgery was also expected to be brought out at the inquest.

Indications that this letter is a fraud, coupled with other documentary evidence in possession of police, are expected to complete the circumstantial net that is being woven about a suspect.

HEARING PRIVATE

After a brief argument before Judge Timothy A. Hayes, District Attorney Bartlett succeeded in having the inquest ruled a private hearing today.

Bartlett argued that with the public and press barred, witnesses would be inclined to be more frank in their testimony, and said that "if a person actually before the court should be criminally involved, the State would benefit by his being before the court alone and without counsel."

It has been understood that the name of the slaying suspect, a man intimately connected with the Mt. Hermon campus, would be given at the inquest.

As soon as the order making the inquest secret was issued by Judge Hayes, the corridors were cleared of spectators, and Deputy Sheriffs Fred W. Doane and Theodore Garby took the 25 witnesses in charge and placed all except Mrs. Charlotte Speer, the widow, and her father, Henry H. Welles, in an ante room together.

Mrs. Speer and her father, who arrived this morning from New York, were allowed to sit in a separate room with Doctor Robert Russell, an intimate friend.

WIDOW WITNESS

The widow was the eighth witness and remained in the inquest room about 45 minutes, to the noon recess hour. At that time, it was said that her testimony was over, but she had agreed to remain in Greenfield another 24 hours, in the event of a possible recall.

Calm and well-poised, the widow appeared to have recovered from her grief, following the slaying of her husband.

She declined to comment on her testimony and reporters were requested by her father not to try and interview her.

Under escort of Doctor Russell, her father and three state troopers in plain clothes, she left the courthouse by a rear door and was taken to Northfield Inn, where her mother and her father-in-law, Doctor Robert E. Speer awaited her.

PRECEDED BY ELDER

Mrs. Speer was preceded into the inquiry by Thomas E. Elder, dean of Mt. Hermon School. He remained in the grand jury room only 20 minutes, and when he came out he rejoined the other witnesses.

The school dean was the seventh witness called, the preceding six being F. Dean Avery, a civil engineer, who was armed with maps and plans of the school campus and adjacent terrain; Willett Forbes, a photographer; Francis G. Bayley, mathematics instructor and track coach at the school; Lawrence Daggett, an instructor in French; D. R. Merriam, a French instructor also, and Dr. Halbert G. Stetson, medical examiner.

In addition to the allegedly forged letter, police will offer the diary which Dr. Speer kept up to the time of his death, another letter presumably written by the slain headmaster, and statements of various members of the faculty. Many of these statements, police said, conflict directly with statements made by the man under suspicion.

The inquest was expected to last three or four days. At its conclusion three courses will be open to Judge Hayes.

The judge can report that the shotgun which killed Dr. Elliott Speer was fired by a person or persons unknown, in which case it will be up to police to continue their probe.

He can find probable cause and order a suspect held for the grand jury. Or he can make a report on the case and turn the testimony over to the grand jury to take whatever action is sees fit.

Industry to Favor NRA Bargaining Clause

Copyright, 1934, by International News Service

New York, Dec. 3—America's manufacturers will ask for continuation of section 7A, the collective bargaining clause of the recovery act, beyond the expiration of the act in June, 1935, adding a request for "clarifying definitions."

They will also express their readiness to approve "a sound solution" of the proposal which President Roosevelt recently announced as the next on his list, unemployment insurance.

That is the extent to which the national association of manufacturers is ready to "go along" with the new deal in its convention which will open here Wednesday.

RECOVERY PLATFORM

The first item for the convention will be consideration of a "proposed platform for recovery." This platform has been drafted by a committee of 50 varied manufacturers and has been sent out for advance consideration of 200 of the country's leading industrialists.

An exclusive opportunity to study this platform, and the proposals accompanying it, the contents of which have been a closely guarded secret, was given to International News Service today.

On the labor provisions the report reads:

"The committee recommends that the Congress be urged to enact for a period of one year from the expiry date (June 16, 1935) appropriate legislation which would permit the continuance during the period named, of the labor provisions prescribed in existing codes, pertaining to child labor, minimum wages, maximum hours and collective bargaining, with clarifying definitions of collective bargaining and provisions for more elastic working hours added."

INSURANCE STUDY

On unemployment insurance it says:

"Industry is ready to co-operate in an adequate and impartial study, and also to give approval to the adoption of a sound solution. The fear of a wrong solution, and the unpredictable effects of such a program, are serious deterrents to forward planning by business, so necessary to recovery."

A suggestion as to what the manufacturers would like to see in any "clarification" of Section 7A is seen in one of the planks of the platform under "employment relations and industrial disputes." The plank reads:

"Do not deprive individuals and minorities of their right to bargain for themselves."

SOCIAL MEASURES

The planks on unemployment insurance read:

"Social measures, such as compulsory unemployment insurance or reserves must be founded on principles which will not create further unemployment or make re-employment hazardous:

"Or threaten industry with confiscatory taxes and burdens and thereby delay recovery;

"Or increase relief and living costs;

"Or aggravate the disparity between prices of agricultural and manufactured products;

"Or cause office seekers to make a political football of such measures;

"Or impair confidence in public finances."

The platform was drafted under the chairmanship of Charles R. Hook, president of the American Rolling Mill Company of Middletown, Ohio. It has been approved by the board of directors of the National Association of Manufacturers and its approval by the convention is expected, although protests from those who still call themselves "rugged individualists" are expected as in the convention of the American Bankers Association. C. L. Bardo, former president of the New York Shipbuilding Company, is president of the association.

U.S. HIGH COURT IN RULING HERE

By International News Service

Washington, Dec. 3—The supreme court in two more decisions affecting landlords of tenants who enter bankruptcy, today ruled that a landlord can prove a claim in bankruptcy court where the lease provided for termination of the lease upon bankruptcy and liability for liquidated damages.

The case was appealed by Irving Trust Co., trustee of the bankrupt outfitters operating Realty Co., Inc., which had leased property in Boston from A. W. Perry, Inc.

The Perry Company filed a claim of $17,788 with the Irving Trust, the amount declared due as liquidated damages under the long lease. The right to prove the claim was upheld.

A similar ruling was made on appeal of Irving Trust Company, trustee in bankruptcy for Sarnoff-Irving Hat Stores Inc., which had leased a store in Boston from Real Estate Associates, the latter company being victor in the suit.

Hospital Patients Strike Over Food

Warsaw, Dec. 3 (INS)—The strangest strike in Poland's history began today when 800 patients at the Hospital of the Holy Spirit refused to accept the diet recommended by the institution's physicians.

The patients said they would die rather than eat the prescribed foods, which are rich in vitamins. Upon what they based their objections could not be learned. Hospital authorities said forcible feeding would be used.

9 NAZI RIOTERS 'JAIL SELVES'

By refusing to accept court leniency, nine anti-Nazi rioters practically sent themselves to jail today to work out fines of $20 to $50 at the rate of 50 cents a day.

The group appeared before Judge Ernest Hobson in Suffolk Court for sentence after a jury had found them guilty last week of inciting to riot at a demonstration against the German cruiser Karlsruhe last May.

Before imposing fines, Judge Hobson invited the defendants to ask for suspended sentences, if they felt they could not pay fines. All refused on the claim that they were not really guilty and that to ask suspension of sentence would be an admission of guilt.

Judge Hobson then levied a $50 fine against Albert A. Mallinger of Newbury street, Back Bay, alleged ringleader of the demonstration.

Fines of $25 were levied against Alice Burke of Columbus square, South End; Belle Lewis of Havelock street, Dorchester; Mary Sellin of Auburn court, Brookline; and $20 fines against Bernice Frazer of Harvard street, South End; Charles Gilman of Commercial street, North End; Abe Kline of Hollander street, Roxbury; Leon Lappin of Central square, Cambridge, and John C. O'Flaherty of Peterboro street, Back Bay.

The cases of Albert Nadler of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Samuel Sax of Lawrence avenue, Roxbury, were filed. Those fined were taken to Charles street jail.

Probers of Small Accounts Puzzled

Lowell, Dec. 3—Federal bank examiners who today continue their investigation into the accounts of Ivan O. Small, former vice-president of the Old Lowell National Bank, who committed suicide in Nashua, N. H., Friday, are faced with a puzzle.

Although they have already determined that his accounts were $25,000 short, with indications that more shortages will probably be discovered, they said, no clue as to what use was made of the missing money has been unearthed.

Among Boston's BEST DRESSED WOMEN

(NO. 6)—Mrs. Charles A. Shea

MRS. CHARLES A. SHEA OF DEDHAM
Knit Wool Sports Costume

SPORTS OUTFIT OF WOOL IS SMART

By MARGARET D. O'CONNELL

Sixth to be chosen by the committee naming 10 among Boston's best-dressed woman is . . .

Mrs. Charles A. Shea of Dedham.

The latest selection made by Mrs. Leland Powers and the artists, John Lavelle and John Whorf, is an attractive blonde with eyes of Wedgewood blue.

Mrs. Shea buys her clothes in Paris, favoring Renee, who went to the establishment of Drecoll when Callot went out of business.

It was a great loss to French designers when Madame Callot closed her doors. No one, quite as she, understood the subtle blending of colors and the delicate manipulation of materials.

When I interviewed Mrs. Shea she was wearing a smart sports outfit of vanilla colored wool that had been hand knit to resemble a fine Scotch tweed. This had a tobacco-brown knit blouse with all the fine detail of hand-finished French blouses intricately worked out in wool. Said Mrs. Shea:

"I love knit clothes but not the kind one finds in America. These suits have all the fit of custom-tailored suits and .they never stretch out of shape, or sag. Wool is one of my favorite materials."

Coat Really Knitted

Mrs. Shea showed me a cocktail suit made with a long skirt and cutaway coat that, upon first inspection, I wouldn't believe was really knitted. She said:

"Of course, I love black. It is so very chic. But I also feel that colors, if carefully chosen, are very much more interesting, and I, for one, feel much smarter in them.

"You know, I am very partial to red, always having a red dress in my wardrobe and when I put it on I know I am going to enjoy myself thoroughly; it acts like a tonic on me.

"For evening I prefer turquoise blue and the soft shades of pink. To one of my coloring they are very flattering and soft. I don't like dresses in the so-called robe de style, or period gown.

"These are all right for the debutante, very pretty and appealing, but the smart woman should wear the long, slinky lines that have been the fashionable silhouette for the past few seasons.

"Accessories are very important when completing the costume. The French woman spends hours picking out the accessories that she knows are going to stamp her as an outstanding fashionable wherever she appears.

"Grooming, of course, is very important and that is where the American woman falls short of her Continental sister.

"However, there is a casual perfection about the American woman, when she is well groomed and smartly attired, that is far more refreshing than the studied poise of the European woman. The latter is apt to appear too much like a mannequin and too little like a real human being.

"It is a joy, however, to watch the European woman at the salons selecting her gowns. She goes about it with the enthusiasm of an artist at work on his masterpiece. And that is the most important thing to remember. Select each outfit as if it is to be your masterpiece and you will ever be smart."

Selection of Mrs. Shea makes five married women among the first six named by the committee, the others having been:

Mrs. Robert Farrington of Newton.

Miss Kathleen Moran of Marlborough street.

Mrs. Gardner W. Bullard of Berkeley street.

Mrs. Matthew J. Whittall of Otis place.

Mrs. Willard Emery of Mt. Vernont street.

But tomorrow's another day.

(Mrs. O'Connell will announce the committee's seventh selection tomorrow and will tell you all about her.)

Mercy Killer Wins Fight; Death Penalty Reprieved

SHAW ASKS LAW PERMITTING EXECUTION OF IMBECILES

By Associated Press

London, Dec. 3—The home secretary's office informed George Lansbury, labor leader, today that Mrs. May Brownhill, the 62-year-old mother condemned to die for the "mercy slaying" of her imbecile son will be reprieved.

The frail Leeds woman received the death sentence after testifying she gave her son Denis 100 sedative tablets and gas because she feared an operation she faced might cost her her life and deprive Denis of her care.

She said she had nursed the invalid for 30 years.

Several members of Parliament joined with George Bernard Shaw and Lansbury in urging clemency for the woman.

The jury which convicted her recommended mercy, but the judge carried out the strict letter of the British law.

Shaw, in commenting on the death sentence, said:

George Bernard Shaw, celebrated dramatist and critic of life, said:

"A law authorizing competent authority to put such people (as the imbecile son) to a merciful an painless death is long overdue. If people's lives are going to be taken this way, I say do the job properly and give them painless deaths. It is infinitely better than the living death they are compelled to endure."

ELISSA

SAYS MATE IS NO GENTLEMAN!

Hollywood, Dec. 3—Her husband—John Cecil Lawrence, London solicitor—is no gentleman!

Such was the fiery Elissa Landi's retort today after a few hours of contemplation of Lawrence's divorce suit against her in which he names Abram Chasins, Philadelphia musician, corespondent.

Elissa, the tempestuous, in her most regal manner (she is believed to be a member of the Austrian nobility though she never has come forth and commented about that story) expressed herself as very much surprised that "John" would do such a thing to her. She said:

"He did not like the idea of being called Mr. Elissa Landi and I suppose many men could understand that attitude. However, it deprived me of his companionship and wrecked our home life completely."

New Woolworth Romance Moves to Hollywood

FIANCE IS WOOLWORTH BUT WENDY'S RING IS NOT

Actress Talks

RING, NOT FROM DIME STORE, FLASHES

By Universal Service

Hollywood, Dec. 3 — From the cupid's bow lips of the famous and equally beautiful Irish actress herself came the admission that the next scene in the tangled, international romance of Wendy Barrie and Woolworth Donahue, heir to a fabulous "five-and-ten-cent-store fortune," may be played in Hollywood!

After Miss Barrie had hastened from England to New York to wed the Donahue scion, her engagement to young "Willie" was broken abruptly.

It was believed generally in the smart circles in which the young people move that the "reason" for the broken troth was Mrs. Jessie Woolworth Donahue, mother of the handsome youth and mistress of some $50,000,000.

Miss Barrie said:

"But if Willy loves me enough, he will come to Hollywood. For it is here that I expect to make my home. If he still wants me, he'll know where to find me."

Her glance strayed to the glittering diamond engagement ring which, it was obvious, was of the kind that "Woolworth doesn't sell." She sighed:

"I came to America to be married. But—well—you can guess what happened. Barriers, family and all that sort of thing, were placed between us. We just couldn't go on.

"Not that I'm bitter about it. And I'm not angry with Willy. He's a few months older than I am, but, you see, he doesn't come into his inheritance until he's twenty-five, so, of course, he's under his mother's thumb.

"Oh, don't think that I want to say anything against Mrs. Donahue, either. Doubtless, she's a sweet, lovely woman.

"The thing is, I think it's foolish to announce an engagement. When two people love each other, they should decide, very quietly, that they're meant for each other and get married without any fuss."

HELD IN BOGUS COIN PLOT

Bail of $10,000 was imposed by Commissioner Edwin C. Jenney in Federal Court today on Warren Perry, 19, of Howard street, and Joseph Peter Kizol, 20, of Montgomery street, both in Boston, for possessing and passing counterfeit $5 and $10 bills in the market section.

There Is Something New---Under the Moon

DEBUTANTE TO "COME OUT" AT 2 A. M. BREAKFAST DANCE

New York, Dec. 3—At last! Something new for the debutantes. Year in and year out the "debbies" and their "collegiate stags" have attended dinner-dances, theater parties, balls and costume events.

The Leonard J. Wyeths, who have a debutante—Priscilla Wyeth—on their hands this winter, looked over the debutante situation with great care.

They discovered the "Kute Kiddies" are bored to tears with dinner-dances, theater-parties, balls, costume-events, continuous dancing, suppers of scrambled eggs, etc.

And, being blessed with that good old pioneer spirit, Mr. and Mrs. Wyeth decided to give the aforementioned "Kute Kiddies" something different.

A "dawn breakfast dance" is the novelty promised by the Wyeths. And the date is January 5, at 2 o'clock in the morning.

Priscilla will go down in social history as the only "deb" who ever made her formal bow at 2 a. m.

Perhaps the Wyeths set the unheard-of-hour in order to give "Kute Kiddies" an opportunity to arrive on time for once in their dear, crowded, idle lives.

No matter, no matter, a "dawn breakfast dance" sounds different—and exciting.

And the Wyeths are to be congratulated on realizing our "Kute Kiddies" love their homes so much they prefer to remain out all night—dancing.

MOTHER SEEKS AID IN BASKET FUND PLEA

"Hoping you will not forget me this Christmas. We have no hope of having a good dinner on Christmas. I am very anxious to get a good Christmas dinner as I will be in the City Hospital shortly afterwards. We had canned hamburg for Thanksgiving."

Thus writes a Charlestown mother to the Christmas Basket Editor of the Boston Evening American. This woman is expecting a baby in January. Her prospects for a Christmas dinner are not very good. There will be no happiness in her home unless aid comes from Goodfellows among the readers of the Boston Evening American.

In her letter, written in pencil, the expectant mother appeals to YOU—YOU and YOU—to lend a helping hand. But her letter is only one of hundreds that continue to arrive in the mail. She writes:

"I would be very thankful if you would remember me this Christmas. I am going to have a baby. I have to have nourishing food such as milk, vegetables and fruit. So you see it is very hard to get along."

ASK FOR CASE 12

Anyone wishing to aid this woman may do so by calling the Christmas Basket Editor, Liberty 4000, and ask for Case No. 12.

Since the opening of the Christmas Basket Fund drive by the Boston Evening American several days ago, hundreds of letters have poured in from the hopeless, cheerless, friendless folk whose Christmas Day will be just another miserable day on the calendar if some great-hearted goodfellow does not heed their appeals for aid.

Several mothers who could not afford the cost of a two-cent postage stamp, walked to the Christmas Basket Fund office at 294 Devonshire street, to make a personal appeal. One woman trudged through the rain last Saturday wheeling her two small children in a dilapidated carriage from the West End.

PITIFUL PLIGHT

In a broken voice, she told the Basket Fund editor of her pitiful plight—her hopeless fight to provide for her two children—one a girl suffering from a bad cold—with no funds to obtain medicine. The mother was stockingless and wore rain-soaked bedroom slippers in place of shoes.

From now until Christmas, part of the proceeds of the original Beano game being operated at the New Normandie Ballroom, 547 Washington street, and sponsored by the Volunteers of America, will be donated to the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund.

Have YOU done your part? A penny, nickle, dime—any donation will help. Do it now. The Christmas Basket Fund office is only a step from the shopping district. If you are in the shopping district, call at the office—294 Devonshire street, around the corner from Summer st.

Any help you can give goes 100 per cent to families that need it.

Wander Bird's Family Crew -:- Drops Anchor in Charles River

"Sail, ho!" shouts Able Seaman Gwen Tompkins from her perch in the rigging of the yacht, Wander Bird. But she's only kidding. Because the Wander Bird, just now, is tied up in Charles River basin. Mrs. Tompkins—Smith College graduate, has spent the past seven years voyaging the seven seas.

"Me seasick? Never," laughs four-and-a-half- year-old Ann Tompkins, "second mate" of the yacht Wander Bird, aboard which she and her father and mother and younger brother roam the oceans of the world. Ann can do her trick at the wheel as skillfully as a man. (Pictures by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

Pathetic Christmas Appeals Received

Case 1

I am sending in my plea to you at this early date for a Christmas basket. Last year my six little children, as well as my husband and myself, were left without anything except bread and jelly and we didn't even have enough of that.

My six chidren range from one to 11. Anything you will be able to send them, either in the line of food or clothing, will be more than appreciated.

My husband has not worked for the past few years and the small amount allowed us by the welfare is not enough for us to have even bare necessities of life. I am not asking for anything for my husband or myself, but ask you to please to try and send us something that will help to cheer up our poor little children and try to make them forget the terrible day last Christmas was for them.

May God help you in your worthy cause and if at any time I am ever in a position to spare even a dollar I will certainly think of the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund.

This mother lives in Readville. Anyone wishing to help her may do so by calling the Christmas Basket Fund Editor, Liberty 4000, and ask for Case No. 1.

Case 3

My husband is out of work and I have four children and I find it very hard to get along, as I have been under the doctor's care for a year and a half, and I am not able to get anything for them for Christmas.

I hope to God that you will send me a Christmas basket, as I need it badly, because without your help there will not be any Christmas for us.

If you can provide some clothing I will appreciate it very much as I have one boy 11 years old and two boys 6 and 9 years, and also a little girl, age 8. I would like something for her to wear.

Anything you can do will be very much appreciated. Here's hoping you will not forget me this Christmas and that you will not forget to give me a basket.

This mother lives in Cambridge. Anyone wishing to help her may do so by calling the Christmas Basket Editor, Liberty 4000, and ask for case No. 3.

Case 5

For the first time in my life I'm asking help for a Christmas dinner for my children. My children have been sick with tonsilitis and one developed a mastoid. We are five in the family and expect a baby in the future.

I do hope that your kind and generous paper, the Boston American, will give us a basket so the children will at least have a Christmas dinner.

Please don't forget the children. Please don't forsake them in this great time of their need. We depend upon you for our Christmas dinner. Hope to hear from you in the near future.

This mother lives in Dorchester. Anyone wishing to help her may do so by calling the Christmas Basket editor, Liberty 4000, and ask for Case No. 5.

Case 6

I am writing you this letter to see if you will help me this Christmas. I am very much in need, I have just come of the hospital and I have six children and have one boy in the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary now, and we are very much in need.

My husband is not with me and I have only one son working on the ERA and that isn't enough to live on. I owe a lot of bills and can't pay them.

I do hope you will send us a basket for the sake of the children.

We look forward to Christmas.

This mother lives in Somerville. Anyone wishing to help her may do so by calling the Christmas Basket Editor, Liberty 4000, and asking for case No. 6.

SECOND MATE, 4 WANTS TEA-SET

For all her seamanship, Second Mate Ann Tompkins, a winsome blonde mite who's four-going-on-five,, is this feminine—when she visited Santa Claus today she whispered in his ear that what she most wanted was a tea-set.

More than that, she confided to him that she "just loves pretty dresses and red shoes like Mummy bought me in Copenhagen and houses with little gardens so I can sprinkle 'em with my little green watering-can."

Which is all rather surprising if you know Ann's brief but eye-popping history.

Just returned from a 15,000 mile trip from Boston to the Baltic Sea ports with her father, Warwick Tompkins, mother and "The Commodore," her three-year-old brother, Ann, it was revealed, acted as second mate to her father, captain of the schooner yacht, Wander Bird. Her costume is almost as brief as her years—white knitted shorts and sweater. Ann has practically spent her life on the yacht.

Casassa of permitting gangs to exist in Revere.

Seven other cities will go to the polls to choose mayors tomorrow. Quincy's choice lies between its present mayor, Charles A. Ross, and his predecessor, Thomas McGrath.

In Gloucester there is a three-cornered fight between Mayor George H. Newell, former Mayor John E. Parker and Alderman Weston Friend.

Mayor George E. Dalrymple of Haverhill is running for re-election against A. Franklin Priest.

New Bedford's perennial mayor, Charles S. Ashley, 76, who has served 22 one-year terms and four two-year terms, is running again against Arthur N. Harriman and George E. Lilley.

Five candidates are seeking the mayoralty in Holyoke. They are Edward S. Alden, John B. Donohue, Simon A. Flynn, Henry J. Toepfert and William P. Yoerg.

Elections in Fall River have been postponed until December 18, and in Salem until January 15. In Peabody, James E. McVann polled more than half the primary votes cast by 80 per cent of the voters, and was automatically elected mayor.

SMALL DEFICIT OVER $50,000 IS FORESEEN

Lowell, Dec. 3—Shortages in the accounts of Ivan O. Small, former vice president of the Union Old Lowell National Bank who committed suicide Friday night, will probably exceed $50,000 federal bank examiners revealed today.

They announced at the same time that many of the shortages are in accounts for which Small acted as trustee. They added that the stability of the bank was in no danger, it being rated as one of the soundest financial institutions in this section of the country, even during the bank crisis of two years ago.

One of the larger losses in the accounts for which he was trustee was reported today to be in accounts he held for the president and treasurer of a large Lowell concern, his friend for nearly 20 years.

Another account involves even the Christmas savings of an old friend who is now ill, examiners reported.

Investigators may have to go back over Small's 23 years of service at the bank for a complete audit. Small started employment as a clerk there in 1911.

To guard against any rush of withdrawals by timid depositors, bank officials received a record shipment of cash for the bank's opening today. They still stand proudly on their record of the crisis when they stemmed a rush by paying every depositor who wished to withdraw any amount.

POND AND WIFE SAVED AT SEA

The yacht was almost in the breakers off Bogue Island when the coast guard station crew first saw her plight.

Efforts by the Bogue Island coast guardsmen to tow her off the breakers with a power boat proving futile, help was asked from Morehead City, N. C., where the cutter Travis was stationed.

The Travis succeeded in putting a line on her, and towed her back to the Morehead City base. Repairs to her rigging are being rushed, and a new anchor, lost during the struggle, is to be shipped, so the party may continue to the West Indies.

Licenses Fees Down, Not Up

The license fee for package goods liquor stores in Boston has been reduced $200 for next year by the licensing board. Through an error, the Boston Evening American said editorially a few days ago that the charge had been increased by that amount. The new permits will cost $1200 instead of $1400 as in 1934.

GLORIA MISSES CHURCH PLATE AT COLLECTION

By Universal Service

Roslyn, L. I., Dec. 3—Dressed in green woolens and attentively following the ritual from her prayerbook, 10-year-old Gloria Vanderbilt listened to a lecture on religion at St. Mary's Catholic church here while attorneys prepared to renew the battle for her custody.

Accompanying the heiress was her aunt, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, and two detectives.

The Rev. Patrick Feely, rector of the church here, discussed the physical and spiritual significance of the cross in Christian doctrine in a talk addressed to children rather than adults.

Seated in the second pew from the altar, Gloria and her aunt were so absorbed in the ritual they did not note the appearance of ushers with collection baskets.

While the wealthiest parishioners were fumbling for their purses, the ushers withdrew but returned at a sign from Mrs. Whitney. Both she and Gloia contributed several silver coins hastily.

After the service Mrs. Whitney led the child to their waiting automobile where they calmly posed for newspaper photographers.

The congregation, which includes many celebrities among whom were Clarence H. Mackay and his wife, the former Anna Case, passed them with hardly a glance.

In seclusion in New York City, after a week's visit in Washington, Mrs. Gloria Vanderbilt would not comment today on a published report that she plans to sue her wealthy sister-in-law, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, "for several million dollars" for alienation of the affections of her ten-year-old daughter, Gloria.

When she returned last night, Mrs. Vanderbilt refused to discuss the case. She is awaiting a ruling from the Appellate Division in her bitter fight to regain custody of her heiress daughter from Mrs. Whitney.

AXE MURDER MAY BE AUTO DEATH

Arrested shortly after the battered body of Andrew Merrill, 48-year-old Duxbury woodchopper, was found in Abington street, Hingham, three men today were held in bail of $1000 each on charges of drunkenness. At least one was said to have been a friend of the dead man.

They were arraigned today before Judge Daniel Shea in Hingham court.

While they faced further questioning, Medical Examiner John G. Sweeney announced that the dead man's injuries—a fractured skull, punctured lung and broken left leg—may have been caused by an automobile, although the skull fracture was wide enough to have been caused by an axe blade.

U. S. Orders Suit on Film Bankers

New York, Dec. 3 (AP)—Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe today authorized trustees in bankruptcy for Paramount-Publix Corporation to bring plenary action against former officers, directors and executives of the corporation to recover sums said to amount to several million dollars.

The trustees were authorized also to bring action against members of the banking firm of Kuhn, Loeb Co., Among the defendants are Daniel Frohman and Adolph and Eugene Zukor.

Jailed Again as Bad Check Passer

Brunswick, Me., December 3—Charged with passing a worthless $5 check in a hotel here, F. D. Christopher, 35, Watertown, Mass., public accountant, was sentenced to two months in jail. He was brought here from Bangor, where he served 60 days on a similar charge.

Christopher is also wanted by the Portland police on seven bad check charges, and by the police of Lewiston and Brockton, Mass.

AVOID UGLY PIMPLES

Does a pimply face embarrass you? Get a package of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights, if you are like thousands of others.

Help cleanse the bowels with Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound; known by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with constipation and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take one or two at bedtime for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c, 30c, 60c.

3. HOLMAN SHOT AT WIFE—THEN TURNED GUN ON SELF—AS MRS. WOODWARD LOOKED ON—.
2. HERE HE WAS STOPPED BY MRS. WOODWARD WHO ASKED HIM TO LEAVE.
1. HOLMAN ENTERED REAR DOOR AND MADE WAY TO SECOND FLOOR.

This is the house on Upland road, West Somerville, where Marsden C. Holman, Arlington florist, shot and killed his wife and then committed suicide. The diagram shows how Holman entered a back door, was vainly warned away, met his wife on the stairs, then confronted her in the second floor kitchen, turning his gun first on her and then on himself. U. S. IS ASLEEP!

We Must Keep Our Eyes on London Naval Talks

By RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD

Noted Author and Former U. S. Ambassador to Italy

Somewhat asleep?

Do the American people watch carefully enough Uncle Sam's position in the naval disarmament negotiations?

In the first place, it is noticed that these negotiations supposed to be PRELIMINARY to a conference in 1935 are in FACT more negotiations?

THEY HAVE BECOME MORE IMPORTANT AND MORE FINAL THAN THE PROJECTED CONFERENCE.

The preface has become the whole book!

Almost everything has turned upon the rating to which Japan shall be entitled. She, PERHAPS "playing poker," demands agreed equality of naval strength with the United States and Great Britain.

IS THIS DISARMAMENT AT ALL?

It may be LIMITATION, but it is arming UPWARD—NOT DOWNWARD.

The plain-thinking American patriot can now stand with the simple-thinking disarmament pacifist and both can observe that the whole spirit of the negotiations appears to have turned away from the question of HOW SMALL NAVIES CAN BE MADE BY DESCENDING THE LADDER OF POWER and is now, seemingly, a question of HOW HIGH CAN EACH NATION CLIMB IN VARIOUS FORMS OF RATIOS AND ARMED FORCES.

Richard Washburn Child

Japan's insistence upon equality even takes the form of asking for a status of equality though promising NOT TO BUILD UP TO THAT STATUS!

In other words a CONTRACT is proposed to be like a deed which says: "This is a grant of a hundred acres of land, but the grantee will only take 57 acres."

Japan is quite firm about equality. Her spokesmen argue that her needs to police the Far Eastern Pacific are great, that she must look to dangers on the Asiatic mainland, that an island empire needs naval strength.

One of her official spokesmen has even been audacious enough to suggest that if the United States wants a superior naval strength it MUST BE BECAUSE WE PLAN AGGRESSION!

He overlooks the length of our coast line, our Pacific possessions and the range of our part in world commerce.

He overlooks our Monroe Doctrine—a doctrine which has PROTECTED LATIN AMERICA FROM ALIEN POLITICAL DOMINATION BY ANY POWERFUL NATION.

He fails to point out any motive we could have for AGGRESSION.

To be sure, we have meddled once or twice in an unnecessary and even silly way in Japan's affairs.

But never meddled more than writing schoolmarm notes!

And then it was because we were egged on by nations not averse to seeing us act as catspaws and get into profitless irritations in the Far East.

Theodore Roosevelt knew that writing scolding notes to neighbors about their own affairs was bad policy. You must be ready to BACK UP what you say. When petitioned to interfere about Korea, he asked the petitioners to add that they wanted him to back up his WORDS with DEEDS. Were they ready for the United States to lose some billions of dollars and some hundreds of thousands of our boys? That was the Colonel!

IF THE REASON GIVEN BY JAPAN FOR CLAIM TO NAVAL EQUALITY is that the United States may become an AGGRESSOR and INVADER, then the naval disarmament negotiations have reached SLAP-STICK COMEDY.

If our plea for DISARMAMENT DOWNWARD fails and if on top of that our plea to keep RATIOS AND LIMITATION DOWN fails, the best policy in the whole bag of policies for Uncle Sam is to say:

"Well, I did my best, BUT IF THIS IS TO BE A GO-AS-YOU-PLEASE, I CAN AFFORD TO BUILD TWO WHILE OTHERS BUILD ONE! NO PWA WORK IS MORE VALUABLE THAN BUILDING A NAVY, A NAVY NOT ALMOST GOOD ENOUGH BUT JUST A LITTLE MORE THAN GOOD ENOUGH TO WIN. IT WILL GIVE UNEMPLOYED MEN JOBS. IT WILL STIMULATE THE HEAVY INDUSTRIES. WE CAN DO IT."

To agree with any other nation for "cooperation" as a hint to Japan is to come near enough to the next step—AN ALLIANCE OF FORCE—to startle the American people from their SLUMBER.

When we begin "understandings" with anyone to provide any part of our national defense or to pledge in advance our action or hock our national conscience, then:—

We are stepping on the road to the mazes and confusions, the intrigue and the traps, of alliances for force.

MARTIN INSULL TRIAL OPENS

By Associated Press

Chicago, Dec. 3—Martin J. Insull, 65 years old, brother of Samuel Insull, went on trial today before Judge Cornelius J. Harrington in criminal court.

Selection of a jury was postponed until tomorrow by agreement of, attorneys.

Martin, heartened by the recent acquittal of his brother, nephew and 15 other defendants, indicated a similar defense to charges of embezzlement—a defense that his efforts were toward preservation of the $400,000,000 Middle West Utilities Corporation he headed.

State Prosecutor John O'Hara said the evidence would be manipulated differently than in the federal case, that the jury will hear more from witnesses and less from books, as the state builds its case charging Martin Insull embezzled $344,729.

MAN KILLS HIS WIFE, SELF

ward ran through the apartment, went down the front stairs and told the first floor neighbors, who telephoned police.

The Holmans have two sons and a daughter, Wardwell Holman, who is married; Marsden C. Holman, Jr., 18, a student at Arlington High school, and Miss Alice Holman, 26, that she had quarreled with the florist.

It was revealed by Arlington police today that the high school boy and his sister had visited police today seeking a complaint against their faher, charging the elder Holman wih abusing and threatening them.

ACCUSE FATHER

The brother and sister said, according to police, that their father was [illegible] furious rage at home last nig[illegible] d hurled furniture and dishes about the rooms.

Police were about to accompany the Holman children to East Cambridge court to seek the complaint when word of the murder and suicide was received at Arlington headquarters.

Alice and her brother said their father and mother had only recently returned from a trip through the South and that he had been morose and disagreeable since.

can party could be reformed, remodelled, what chance would it have against the Democrats, without the national pocketbook at command?

Could Senator Borah have gone far in Rome without money to supply the proletarian with free bread and free circus entertainment?

An old hymn says, "Nothing in my hand I bring, only to Thy cross I cling." That is all right for a repentant Christian, but it will not do for a repentant Republican party.

The short cut to success for a Republican now is to join the Democrats and yell for bigger and faster public spending. He can easily change back later when, if and as the Republican party returns to life.

Our ambassador in London, Mr. Bingham, tells the London observer that British-U. S. unity is near. He discovers a new situation assures England that President can make "LASTING AND BINDING" agreements now, meaning agreements that will last forever. Perhaps President Roosevelt could do that, but Woodrow Wilson could not do it. He said in the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, that he had interwoven the League of Nations and peace treaty so inextricably that they could not be separated. He was, thank heaven, mistaken.

Did Ambassador Bingham, by chance, discuss with England the making of agreements that would be "lasting and binding." AS REGARDS ENGLAND? Nobody would drag in unpleasant recollections, but what about a recent agreement involving several billions of American dollars? That did not prove lasting and binding. American ambassadors should concern themselves less about the good faith of the United States and more about that of European countries when discussing agreements.

Sergei Mironovich Kiroff, murdered in Moscow, was supposed to have been chosen by Stalin as his probable successor, and was one of his most important aids. The murderer was caught, but the government gives no information, except that he was "an enemy of the working class."

He was an enemy of the governing class, more likely, the present governing class. Russian workers have no enemies, have no opportunity of making enemies.

Kiroff, a revolutionist of long and good standing, had spent years in prison and in Siberia under the Czar. Stalin will perhaps find a way to avenge his death more widely than by one killing.

This assassination proves, as others have done, that all the powers of a great state, all the strictness of autocracy, cannot protect life against ONE determined man.

SICK PRISONER FLEES FROM DEER ISLAND

Michael DeLeo, 23, of Lowell street, West End, who was serving a term in the House of Correction at Deer Island for larceny, escaped early today across Shirley Gut.

His escape was discovered by guards shortly after 2 o'clock. About two hours later he approached a citizen in East Boston and offered to sell him a wrist watch. He said:

"I just escaped from Deer Island and I need the money."

The man he approached, who would not give his name, telephoned police. An alarm has been sent to all divisions to watch for him.

He had undergone an emergency operation for appendicitis at City Hospital about two weeks ago, and was considered still a convalescent on the Island.

He had just completed a year's term on the island, and on September 17 had started to serve the balance of a Concord reformatory sentence from which he had been paroled, but which was revoked when he was again returned to prison.

Under the new state law, passed last September, when DeLeo is captured, he may be sentenced to 2½ to 10 years for escaping.

DeLeo has been in and out of jails and courts in New England, according to available records, for nearly five years, despite his youth.

SCHOOL R.O.T.C. HELD LEGAL

By Associated Press

Washington, Dec. 3—Upholding the right of the University of California and other land grant colleges to compel students to take military training, the Supreme Court asserted nanimously today that every citizen has the duty of defending the government.

The court affirmed the action of the university in suspending two students who declined to take the training because of conscientious objections. The decision read:

"Government, federal and state, each in its own sphere, owes a duty to the peoplew ithin its jurisdiction to preserve itself in adequate strength to maintain peace and order and to assure the just enforcement of law.

"And every citizen owes the reciprocal duty, according to his capacity, to support and defend government against all enemies."

WITNESSES HIT RACE HEARING

Tuckerman, society sportsman, who was one of the invited, but who said he would not attend.

Tuckerman, who was one time a leader in the opposition, said:

"I'm not going up there. Some of our group (The Eastern Horse Club) have sent letters to Governor Ely declining the invitation. My own reason for not going is because it looks to me too much like a Conrad Crooker party."

The society man referred to Attorney Conrad W. Crooker, whose demands for a public hearing were granted last week by the Governor's Council.

Crooker, on the other hand, said today that the absence of invited witnesses would in no way impede the scheduled hearing. He said he had many other witnesses who were not invited 'but who will be there just the same."

The three nominees, General Cole, Connors and Ensign, have said they will not attend. The letters of invitation contained the clause that witnesses were invited to appear "to offer opposition." They have no reason to oppose themselves, they explained.

George V. Brown of the Boston Garden, one of those invited, told the Boston Evening American today:

"I have no reason to go to the hearing. I have no opposition and I don't think it would be necessary for me to go. I have talked with many others who said they have no intention of going."

MACOMBER "OUT"

John R. Macomber, another member of the Eastern Horse Club and well known in horse circles, said:

"I make this trip to New York every Monday. I will not be back tomorrow. I have no interest in the matter anyhow, and I've stayed out of it so far. I intend to remain out of it."

Attorney Crooker said today he had been assured that the full membership of the council would be present for the hearing.

The hearing is to be held in the council chamber at the State House unless the attendance requires that it be moved to a larger hearing room in the State House.

HOUSING PLANS OF COUNCIL HIT

Reporting to Mayor Mansfield, the State Board of Housing today recommended a project at the area in Charlestown between Bunker Hill and Medford streets, from Chelsea street to Fay square.

This recommendation replaced the suggestion of the City Council, which approved several housing projects in Charlestown, but at different locations. It turned down also the removal of the elevated structure.

The board stated that the land valuation of the sites, suggested by the City Council, was too high.

They turned down the City Council proposal, also, because of the uncertainty of the elevated structure.

PWA Announces Loan Increase

'EL' EXTENSION FUND PLANNED

A plan for the establishment of a special fund under which the rapid transit system of the Elevated can be extended and needed road improvements made will be submitted to the legislature by the Metropolitan Planning Division.

In a special report to the incoming legislature today, the Division says that the plan will be submitted when it files its general recommendations for 1935.

The need of such a plan was arrived at by the division following an investigation, directed by the Legislature, of the advisability of extending the rapid transit system from Forest Hills to the Dedham line and to Spring street in the West Roxbury district.

Under the present system, it is stated, it would be difficult to finance the extension because of economic conditions. It is estimated that the cost of the extension would be approximately $5,200,000.

Curley Lauds I. J. Fox As New Store Project Starts

With Governor-elect Curley wielding a specially cast silver trowel, a new $100,000 building for the I. J. Fox fur concern, was dedicated today in Washington street, between Bromfield and Winter streets.

Throngs packed Washington street and shut off traffic from that area to watch the ceremony and heard Mr. Fox lauded for the venture that will bring work and wages to many during the construction of the building.

Concerning the project, Mr. Fox himself said:

"I know we are entering the path of a new order of things and that is why we started this project. We have every reason to believe in New England and the New Deal."

FOX HONORED

In recognition of the service of Fox during the World War, a detachment of U. S. Marine reserves acted as honorary escort at the dedication. They were under the command of Captain William J. McCloskey.

Governor-elect Curley arrived with Fox, District Attorney William J. Foley, Carl Dreyfus, publisher of the Boston Evening American, and many other notables. They were greeted by David Lilienthal, vice-president and treasurer of the Fox company; Mrs. Lilienthal and Mrs. Fox.

Others present were Edward A. Johnson, chairman of the building trades council; Mrs. Helen Mason, a friend of the Fox family; Charles H. McGlue, chairman of the Democratic state committee; J. H. Hankin, national junior vice commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars; Edward J. Roemer, building commissioner; Arthur J. O'Keefe, representing Mayor Mansfield, and Street Commissioners Owen Gallagher and Thomas A. Fitzgerald.

CURLEY TRIBUTE

Governor-elect Curley paid high tribute to Mr. Fox for the start of the building enterprise:

"I. J. Fox is a character of fate, who started the enterprise which now gives employment to 700 men and women. It should be practiced more and the depression would be nothing but a nightmare or a bad memory.

"We are gathered to pay tribute to a great American, who is helping the unemployed by erecting this $100,000 building in the heart of Boston. This will remain as a memorial to an American, who has faith in the ability of the American people."

Following the dedication, I. J. Fox Company played host to 200 persons at a luncheon in the Parker House.

COLDS
Go Thru 3 Stages
—and They're Far Easier Relieved in the First than in the Second or Third!

A cold ordinarily goes through 3 stages: the Dry Stage, the first 24 hours; the Watery Secretion Stage, from 1 to 3 days; and the Mucous Secretion Stage. The first stage is the time to "nail" a cold.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is the treatment for colds. It is expressly a cold remedy and not a preparation good for half a dozen other things as well. It is direct and internal which is what a cold, an internal infection, requires. It is also complete—it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. Anything less than that is inviting trouble. Get Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine at any druggist, 35c and 50c. Ask for it by the full name and refuse a substitute.

Byrd that they had covered the hazardous part of their route and were climbing the western margin of the plateau. They gave their position as approximately 162 nautical miles southeast of here.

Admiral Byrd heard with relief of the party's safety, as the journey on which they embarked was attended by dangers and hardships rarely encountered in Antarctic exploration.

(From an advertisement in the Independent Chronicle and Universal Advertiser, January 1, 1784.)

IN 1784, Boston merchants vied with one another to announce their latest importations. In the advertising columns of the newspapers of the times, we find such names as Samuel Barrett, Samuel Allyne Otis, Gilbert and Lewis Deblois, Guild & Co. and Stephen Bruce, in whose shops the well-dressed women of the times chose their finery.

¶ This bank, founded in the same year, soon proved its usefulness to these merchants, for they appear as customers on the original bank ledgers.

¶ In 1784, weeks and months elapsed between the dispatch of an order from Boston and the receipt of the goods from abroad. Today, a new style appears in Paris, is flashed across the Atlantic by radio, and Boston scissors and needles fashion it into reality.

¶ The ability of this bank to keep pace with the changing needs of its customers for 150 years is the best proof of its fitness to serve you today.

You are cordially invited to visit the 150th Anniversary Exhibition at our Head Office, 67 Milk Street.

Here, in rooms designed and furnished in the manner of 1784, are portraits, documents, autographs, furniture and silver, identified with men who established the bank and, for the most part, loaned for this exhibition by their present-day descendants.

ROSA PONSELLE SINGS ARIA ON AIR TONIGHT

By N. F. T.

Several selections of the strictly classical type have been announced as arranged for airing by Rosa Ponselle, well known radio-land soprano, who comes to her weekly wireless work again at 9 o'clock this evening (WNAC) with the augmented Andre Kostelanetz orchestra. These compositions include "Mi Tradi" from Mozarts opera "Don Giovanni" and the "Angel's Serenade," gem by Braga.

Featured with Miss Ponselle, the Variety Singers vocal group plan to turn in a medley of tunes from Cole Porter's new stage show "Anything Goes" and these are to be "All Through the Night" and "You're the Top." Kostelanetz has in mind to present his own special orchestration of "What a Difference A Day Makes" while the above half hour is in progress.

Lindbergh's Sister-in-Law Dies After Long Illness

By Associated Press

Pasadena, Cal., Dec. 3—Mrs. Aubrey N. Morgan, daughter of the late Dwight W. Morrow and sister-in-law of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, died at 2:50 a. m. today in a Pasadena hospital after a long illness.

Present at her bedside when she died were her husband and her mother. Mrs. Morrow, widow of the late United States ambassador to Mexico, flew to Pasadena a week ago from the Morrow home in Englewood, N. J.

"We thought she would live through the night," the hospital night supervisor said. "But Mrs. Morgan's condition was too weak.

"She was conscious until the end."

MOTHER AT BEDSIDE

Mrs. Morgan, the former Elisabeth Morrow, underwent an operation for appendicitis November 10. Pneumonia set in later. When her condition became serious Mrs. Morrow hurried to the coast. She remained almost constantly at the bedside of her daughter.

Late yesterday the hospital reported Mrs. Morgan's condition as slightly improved, but after midnight she grew worse.

Funeral arrangements, it was understood, are being held up pending word from Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh, who were reported in the East.

Englewood, N. J., Dec. 3 (AP)—Early in 1929 when Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh was reported courting one of the daughters of Dwight W. Morrow, then ambassador to Mexico, the word went round that it was Elisabeth, the school teacher. At the time she was active explaining the complexities of English pronounciation to a class of little Mexicans.

Elisabeth knew the truth, but she held her tongue and smiled pleasantly and let the public do its guessing until the announcement of the engagement of Anne and Lindbergh.

The wedding of Miss Morrow and Morgan took place at the Morrow estate on December 28, 1932. The Morgans went to Europe and lived there until last spring when Mrs. Morgan returned to the United States because her health was poor. She went directly to California. A short time later Mrs. Morrow told a few friends her daughter's heart condition was bad.

MAN IS HELD AS 'LAW RUNNER'

In a drive on laywers' runners and so-called "ambulance chasers," police today arrested a Brighton man on complaint of a Roxbury mother of a boy automobile victim.

Booked at police headquarters as Albert Foster, 29, of Mount Hood road, Brighton, he was charged with "soliciting management and control of certain claims for damages, not being an attorney." He told police he was a printer by occupation.

Foster was taken at his home after officers visited Irving Geller, nine, of Blue Hill avenue, Roxbury, and claimed they overheard a conversation in which Foster asked the boy's mother to change attorneys in the case.

Mrs. Geller told police Foster had made a previous visit and sought to induce her to change from Attorney Maurice D. Slovin to "a lawyer who could get good witnesses."

Moiseiwitsch Triumphs at Jordan Hall

By JOYCE DANA

Unheard in Boston for several seasons, Benno Moiseiwitsch returned to Jordan Hall on Saturday afternoon for the first of two concerts of piano music, and was warmly welcomed by a large and most enthusiastic audience, who lingered long after the concert hour for the several encores.

A conventional program from Beethoven, Schumann, Brahm and Chopin was brought to finished perfection by Mr. Moiseiwitsch, who has added to hi amazingly brilliant technique depth of feeling a variety of ton and shading that must place hin in the front ranks of concert pianists today.

While hitherto he has gaine considerable reputation as an in terpreter of Chopin, it was pri cipally in the Beethoven "Wal stein Sonata," and in the Brahm C Major intermezzo, that his tru stature as a musician might be be measured.

Here was not sheer display miraculous technique, but a thri ing and electrifying musical e perience of rare beauty. To sure Mr. Moiseiwitsch dispos of the glissandos in the Brahm Paganini Variations with an believable delicacy played wi charm and dignity and the lightful Schumann Childre Pieces, investing even the cloy "Traumerei" with new life.

Toto Charm Youngsters

The first of the Morning ieties programs brought a la and enthusiastic audience children and their elders to S phony hall, Saturday, where to, the world's most fam clown headed a group of makers that found high favo

Toto, himself, in his volu nous trousers and coats, in tatters and tumbling, in his w derful and fearful automob as the ballet dancer, or swath in layers upon layers of sequ in a travesty of "The Me Widow" waltz, was as a mat of record the favorite.

But there were other funm ers, too, including George H man and Tuts Novello in so truly remarkable acrobat and dancing.

Audience Warms to Fritz Kreisler at Concert

By HARRIS MORGAN

Fritz Kreisler, who stands alone in the hearts of music lovers, gave his second violin recital of the season at Symphony Hall yesterday afternoon.

A commanding figure in the concert world for many years, the great violinist chose the Franck A major Sonata; Mendelssohn's E minor Concerto; a Rondo by Schubert-Friedberg, and for the latter half of the program a group of his own compositions, including Introduction and Scherzo; Shepherd's Madrigal, Cavatina, Malaguena and Gypsy Caprice.

It was for these more informal numbers that the audience kept its warmest response. While the exquisite beauty of tone in the Franck Sonata perhaps could not be matched on the concert stage today, and while rapt attention and appreciation met the great artist for his entire program, so strong an appeal has his potent personality laid upon those who sit before him, that the friendliness and intimacy of hearing his own music through his own artistry provides a treat that would be possible with no other musician.

Once more the splendid accompaniments were provided by Carl Lamson.

NIGHT LIGHTS and SIGHTS

by Manny Sherman

DURING THE recent rain of old Jupiter Pluvius, the night spots were gay with crowds of fun-seeking folks . . and why not? Who wants to stay home on a dreary, rainy night? Besides . . . it gives the taxi boys a break.

Be at the Cascades, when Maestro Joe Rines lifts his baton for the floor show. But hold onto your chair when that pair of adagio dancers, Renof and Renova, start their startling tossing around act. Believe you me, boys and girls, it's breathtaking. I liked Jack and June Blair, a smooth pair of dancers, and lovely Barbara Belmore in her acrobatic stunts. Lots of folks are dropping in at the Cocktail Bar and Grill at the Bradford afternoons for a wee sip and to hear Raye, John and Jewel with their clever stuff on the accordian and violins.

THEY CALL Gene Hecker at the Hotel Essex, "The Pepper Pot" and it's a cinch that genial Gene has put the snap into greetings and what that means to folks who like to feel that their welcome is cordial. There were eats and fun galore all during the holiday, and now plans are under way for the crowning event of them all, New Year's. There will be publenty of entertainment for the occasion. Better get your name in Sam Goldens' reservation book.

Corraling Lou Ashe was a smart piece of work for the Brown Derby folks, for Lou has legions of friends and knows his stuff from A to Z. The floor shows from New York are certainly clicking. And here's a tip . . . don't miss Tess Gardel ("Aunt Jemima") . . . as W. C. Fields would say, "It's a Gift". Dancers clap hands muchly for Jimmie McHale's smooth dance music.

I TOLD you last week about some of the boys in Ruby Newman's swell band at the Hotel Puritan Old Boston Room. Well, here's some more info, which shows why folks in the know think this band is the aces. Frank Dunn, pianist, is a lyric writer for song numbers and Leroy Anderson, leader of the Harvard band plays eight instruments, count 'em. And that, ladies and gentlemen, is talent, eh, what?

Joe Sneider of Stueben's Rathskeller tells me that his policy of having a new floor show each week has had so much favorable comment from patrons that he is going to continue the plan. Jack Fisher and his band get the glad hand on every dance number. You'll know why when you hear the music.

COCOANUT GROVE patrons got an eyefull of the lovely Gertrude Niesen of "Calling All Stars" the past week. In fact, Phil Baker, "Bottle" McNaughton, Mitzi Mayfair and Jack Whiting, from the same company, were stars who called at the Grove, naturally carrying on play hours with their pal, Jacques, who musics for Phil. You'll like the new show, featuring those smart dancers, Rosalean and Seville.

Gertrude Niesen

The Mayfair is another popular spot with stage stars. If you like to get a close-up of them, drop in at this spot almost any night. If you enjoy dancing to sweet rhythm, anyone will tell you that Sammy Liner and his orchestra have what it takes. P. S. Try the Mayfair's Tom Collins.

RUTH KINCAIDE, the cute little personality singer at the Lido, gets invited out to other night spots. Al Martin, of Lou Walter's office, is booking the Lido floor shows, and doing a right smart job, if you ask me. Get a look at Dot and Dash doing that ballroom rhythm dance.

Lights and Shadows

By George Holland

Although Philadelphia stole some of Boston's theatrical thunder last week through a representation of six stage playhouses playing real live actors in the flesh, thus becoming the first of the Big Three Key Cities (Chicago, Philadelphia and New York) to have more attractions this season than Boston, two sudden bookings over the week-end thrust Boston again in the forefront of the outer-New York theatrical scene. Walter Hampden is coming with a repertory, including I hope, "Richelieu", and excluding, I trust, "The Servant in the House", to the Colonial Theater a week from tonight.

Peggy Conklin

Mr. Hampden and his company will play here a week, and that actor's confident—justly confident—attitude toward his place in the city's affections is seen in his bravery in scheduling himself and his company for the week before Christmas, the most terrifying week, from a commercial standpoint, of the entire season. Booking of Walter Hampden for the week beginning Dec. 17 will usher in what may be a New Deal for the Colonial Theater, incidentally.

Once this season the famous Boylston street playhouse has enjoyed three consecutive weeks of action. It is assured at least an additional three consecutive weeks, because after the Hampden repertoire will come Noel Coward's new play, "Point Valaine," with Lynne Fontanne and Alfred Lunt, and after the Coward play the D'Oyle Carte-Gilbert and Sullivan troupe will leave a huge success in New York to come to the Colonial to begin a swing of the big towns.

After the Gilbert and Sullivan series, Sean O'Casey's new play, "Within the Gates," is a definite possibility, and "Dodsworth," with Walter Huston will certainly play Boston (probably the Colonial) before that excellent actor begins a spring engagement under Max Gordon's management in "Othello."

The other sudden booking for Boston is that of Robert Emmet Sherwood's "The Petrified Forest," which will open Christmas Eve at the Shubert Theater. Leslie Howard and Peggy Conklin will be in 'The Petrified Forest."

Very remarkable, to me, is a feature of this new Sherwood play that brings pretty Miss Conklin into her own as the secondary player to one of Hollywood's and Broadway's important stars. It was only a few years ago that Peggy was struggling through a sappy ingenue role in a play called "Old Man Murphy,' which Boston saw under another title. The gal, definitely, has arrived. Her performance as the bundling female in "The Pursuit of Happiness" propelled the charming Peggy into the spot where she has become, instead of at liberty, but "in demand."

EIGHT MOST BEAUTIFUL RED-HEADS IN AMERICA SOUGHT FOR NEW FILM

Hollywood Stars Will Select Bright-Haired Queen For 'Red-Heads On Parade'

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service
(Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service)

Los Angeles, Dec. 3—Hollywood's best known redheads will assist Jesse L. Lasky in locating the eight most beautiful redheads in America for "Red Heads on Parade." Railroads please note, and do your best for a special rate. Janet Gaynor, Myrna Loy, Ginger Rogers, Jeanette MacDonald, Clara Bow (ten dollars to a penny she won't be there, she'll be waiting for the stork), Nancy Carroll and Grace Bradley will meet and select the girls, one of whom will become the queen of the red-heads.

The Prince of Henna will go up for Jesse will use 800 red-"Red - Heads on Parade." He hopes to put the famous "Florodora Sextette" and the Ziegfeld glorified beauties in the shade and to find, in this huge gathering of carmined tresses, two beauties who will become important stars. John Boles is the male star.

Louella O. Parsons

No writer is taking a chance who nominates John Eldredge a potential star. He's got it in him. In the none too fat role of Lieutenant Biddle in "Flirtation Walk," he proves himself an accomplished actor. Jack Warner is cognizant of Eldredge's possibilities and he has changed his whole production scheme for him. Eldredge will play the other male lead in "Oil For the Lamps of China." In other words, he will be George Brent's pal and out at Warners they say that Josephine Hutchinson in all probability, will have the leading feminine role.

Chatter in Hollywood

Janet Gaynor's dentist boy friend, Dr. I. S. Veblen, is exceedingly attractive and cra-azy over Janet. He came to Hollywood as per schedule to spend Thanksgiving and escorted Janet and her mother and her pal, Margaret Lindsay, to the Harry Lachmann cocktail party. Janet was beaming and it looks as if she might say yes to him. Winfield Sheehan, who met the young man at the Lachmann party, apparently likes him and I wouldn't be surprised if he gave his blessing.

* * *

The newest bride and bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. William Wyler, are leaving on a European honeymoon as soon as Mrs. Wyler (Margaret Sullavan to you) finishes her picture, "The Good Fairy" which he is directing. Mr. Wyler is a cousin of the boss of Universal, Carl Laemmle, and the chances are dollars to doughnuts that Maggie, who is much sought after by all the studios, will do another picture at Universal City when her contract expires. Their romance is one of the most unexpected and interesting in all of Hollywood. Guess where Mr. Wyler asked her to marry him? On the roller coaster at Ocean Park. Movie scenario writers take notice!

Myrna Loy

All the discussion and talk over where John Stahl will go can cease. He has re-signed with Carl Laemmle and will remain at the studio where he has made all his biggest successes and where he has always been given carte blanche to do as he pleases. I think he is wise. Alexander Korda is due in Hollywood December 12. He has a date with the Fox company to talk over the releases of his European product.

Snapshots of Hollywood

FRANCIS LEDERER eating his Thanksgiving dinner with ANITA LOOS' family; Anita's pretty niece, MARY ANITA, is the attraction; the handsome Czechoslovakian is seeing young Miss Loos every day and twice on Sundays; ARTHUR RICHMAN, playwright, off for New York; he's leaving his heart behind in the keeping of LILLIAN ERHMAN, well known in Los Angeles social circles; JEAN HARLOW'S book to be brought out in the spring by a New York publisher; WILLIAM O'NEILL, handsome ex-husband of MRS. ADOLPHE MENJOU, sitting only a few feet from her at the screen ball; O'NEILL, who has a grand voice, up for a movie job; DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS buying lunch for WENDY BARRIE, British actress who is tres beautiful; MAURICE CHEVALIER devoting his time to a very pretty brunette at the HARRY LACHMANN'S cocktail party; PAULETTE GODDARD is week-ending in the desert; the two CHAPLIN youngsters who are crazy about her, going along with her; EVELYN LAYE sending to England for her side saddle. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Gayety Bill

"Embarrassing Moments," with Chester Morris and Marion Nixon, and Herbert Marshall in "I Was a Spy," make up the new screen fare at the Gayety. The vaudeville is headed by Harry Gribbon, noted Hollywood comedian, who tops five acts of Broadway variety on the Gayety bill. Short screen subjects and the current news reel are included on the program.

Margie Bartell

All seats at the evening performances now are reserved at the Park, and there will be the usual midnight show on Friday. Others in the big cast are Eddie Lloyd and Jake Fields, adding to the ranks of the funmakers, and Helen Rogers, Chubby Bonneau, Joan Dare, Dolores Gree, Charles Goldie, and Jessie Pryor, with a chorus of 26 featured in the "Capers" line.

'beacon hill'

By Betty Alden

CLOSE ON THE HEELS of last week's almost overwhelming round of gay festivities comes another flock of presentation parties which will keep the debutantes hustling from one party to another to welcome sister buds into the ranks of debdom . . .

After the Misses Hazel Wightman, Nancy Faxon, Jane Wheeler and Ellen Gray have made their curtsies, this week's gayety will come to a climax with the large dance on Saturday evening at the Brookline Country Club, when Mr. and Mrs. Huntington Reed Hardwick present Miss Margaret Hardwick . . .

MISS JANE WHEELER

Peggy, as she is known to her friends, is one of the most attractive and popular of this season's debs, and has already achieved that mark of social success coveted by every "first year outer," membership in the Junior League and Vincent Club . . . She is a graduate of the Park and Winsor Schools . . .

Dinner for Ushers

THE DANCE will be preceded by an ushers' dinner at which several out-of-town guests and about 20 of Miss Hardwick's close friends will dine with the young gentlemen whose duty it will be later in the evening to present the guests to the receiving line . . . The out-of-town friends will be the Misses Virginia Hoyt and Constance Hoyt of New York, Carol Huston and Paton Rauch of Villanova, Pa., and Abbie Ingalls of Hot Springs, Va. . . .

Sister debutantes of the hostess will include the Misses Eleanor Claflin, Margaret Eaton, Margaret Eustis, Nancy Faxon, Ardelle Moseley, Barbara Stevens, Eleanor Swift, Anna Swift, Ruth Talbot, Polly Wardwell, Hazel Wightman and Anne Blake . . .

Besides these there will be the Messrs. Francis H. Brooks, George E. Mercer, William Moseley, Ralph L. Pope, Jr., George E. Percy, William Quimby, Jr., Henry Bancroft Sprague, R. Marvin Scaife, Edward Simmons, George W. Wightman, Jr., Robert Day and William Burnham.

Miss Wightman's Debut on Thursday

ANOTHER NEW Vincent Club and Junior League member, Miss Hazel Wightman, will be presented this week . . . Her debut to be in the form of a tea dance at the Brookline Country Club on Thursday afternoon given by Mr. and Mrs. George Wightman of Brookline . . . Miss Peggy Hardwick will head the pourers for this occasion.

The Algonquin Club was crowded on Saturday afternoon for the tea dance in honor of Miss Frances Shea . . . Far from having a detrimental effect, the inclement weather seemed to serve as an added inducement for friends of the debutante and her family to pay their respects to her in the warmth and cheeriness of the large oak panelled rooms where open fires, hot hors d'oeuvres, Jackie Marshards tinkling rhythms, fragrant flowers and good company shared in making the afternoon one of great pleasure . . .

The only ill effects of the storm was that it prevented Miss Margaret Graham and Miss Virginia Sinclair from winging their way over from New York as they had planned . . .

Charming, Notable Group of Pourers

ONE OF BOSTON'S best dressed women, named by the three judges who are engaged in selecting the outstandingly chic members of our community, was there to live up to her reputation, gowned for her duties as head pourer in a gleaming silver tunic over a black lame skirt with a tiny black hat and a corsage of sweetheart roses . . . Some of her charges were Miss Kathleen Keville, in a violet blue tunic; Miss Mary Fuller, in a cherry red outfit which accented her lovely complexion; Miss Mary Hastings, in a crimson cocktail suit with mink epaulettes, capricious Miss Lucie Hopkins, in plain green; Miss Martha Bird, smiling and gay as ever, in a white bodiced black velvet gown; Miss Ellen Bottomley, her large dark eyes reflecting little lights from the gold in her rust colored frock; tiny Miss Miriam Clarke, fair curls peeping from beneath a brown toque and a vivid red tea gown adorning her little figure . . .

Miss Ellen Gray, who will come out next Friday; Miss Natalie North, who chose the latest in hats, a white fur turban, to top her violet velvet gown; Miss Katherine Maynard, in sophisticated black; Miss Lydia Lyman, in the hunter's green which she wears so becomingly; Miss Genevieve O'Malley, home from school in New York for the holidays, the Misses Anne Ryan, Clare Moran, Jane Brown, Charlotte Read and several others . . .

Presentation of Miss Morison

DARK-EYED MISS MARY MORISON was presented at a tea at her family's old Louisburg square mansion yesterday afternoon . . . Friends, young and old, packed the high-ceilinged reception rooms of the lovely old house and overflowed into the terraced garden in the rear which had been embellished with festoons and greens and fruits for the occasion by Mrs. Robert Cushman . . .

Miss Mary wore a robe de style of stiff white moire with bands of red velvet outlining the decolletage and she carried a huge old-fashioned bouquet which arrived bright and early Sunday morning by aeroplane from an admirer far away . . . Mrs. Horace Morison, one of Boston's most gracious hostesses, wore a plum-colored velvet gown, relying for its trimming on a beautiful set of amber and gold brooches . . . Miss Babbette Morison, home from Vassar for the holidays, wore the popular white and silver lame; Miss Nancy was in silver tissue cloth, and Miss Elizabeth's white gown was trimmed with green . . .

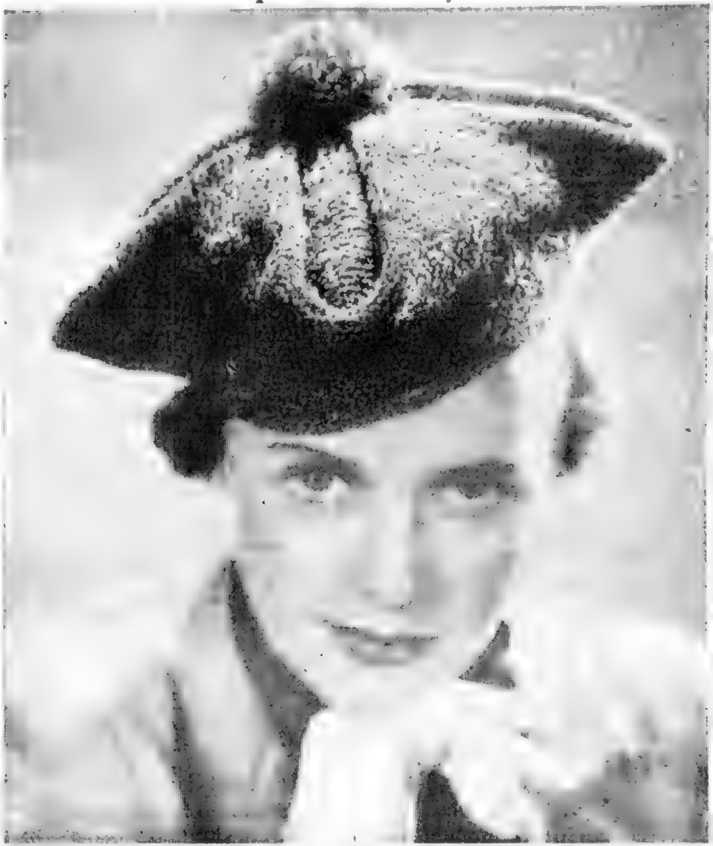
'Cardinal's Cap' Points Its Way to Smartness



KNIT IT in crepe boucle to go with your favorite boucle [illegible] or with your tweed reefer for excursions into the [illegible] s called the "Cardinal's Cap," but of solemn dignity [illegible] e associated with the name it has none. If you're very young, you may perch it cockily over your right eye. The nice part is that it is a hat easily adaptable for the smart matron because its four points give the necessary fullness and height to balance features and coiffure. And she would wear it at a more sedate angle. An unusual flat wooden button might take the place of the pom pom, if you prefer. The top is knitted, the band crocheted. If you would like directions for making the "Cardinal's Cap," write to Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, at the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Put Cut Crystal Decanter of Famous French Perfumed Eau de Cologne on List

By Juliet Shelby

SINCE THE FIRST CHRISTMAS, when the Three Wise Men came bearing frankincense and myrrh, faith and love have been expressed in gifts of rare and lovely fragrance.

That is why during this season [illegible] friends make their appearance and the most exquisite [illegible] take on new [illegible]. And a nice custom it is to give a lovely bottle of perfume or cologne as a gift.

A lovely fragrance, like beautiful music, has a [illegible] power which inspires hope. And some of us would never experience the refreshing elevation of spirits that a bottle of fine fragrance can accomplish, if it were not for this ancient Christmas custom of giving the precious, the rare and the luxurious.

So very appropriate is a gift of that famous French perfumed eau de cologne that comes in seven unusual and lovely bouquets! This Christmas it is sold in a cut crystal decanter of three sizes, which may be used for other rare bouquets when the cologne has been used! Even the smallest bottle makes a nice [illegible] for the last of the Christmas brandy!

Any one of these seven bouquets [illegible] delightful daytime fragrance and for those who indulge in luxuries for the bath, a [illegible] of this cologne over the body, or a few drops sprinkled into your bath water, will give you the fragrant sensation you seek. Or if you come in fatigued, pat it on your forehead and eyes for a few moments and relaxation will be yours.

Men and women alike enjoy eau de cologne, so keep it in mind when you are trying to think of the unusual gift that will please.

The decanters are beautifully boxed and wrapped in paper of gay holiday design.

If you wish to know the name of these famous French colognes and where they are sold, phone Juliet Shelby, Liberty 4000. If you prefer writing, send a stamped, self addressed envelope to Miss Shelby, Boston Evening American, Boston.

Perfumes Are Symbolic

IF YOU WOULD ADHERE to the beautiful woman's tradition of [illegible] perfumes, you'd be ever on the lookout for [illegible] fragrances. An eau de cologne which is [illegible] as a spring shower and is superbly scented as the most expensive perfume is making its debut in pomp and glory for holiday buyers. Louise Latimer, Hollywood player, poses for [illegible] picture.

Lash Grower

Question: I have been using castor oil on my eyelashes every night for a year and while it has lengthened them considerably, they are still very thin. Is there anything I can do to promote their thickness? I don't want to have to use mascara, as I prefer them to appear natural.

V. L., Haverhill.

Answer: There is a new non-toxic and non-irritating lash grower on the market that has been widely acclaimed. It comes in a jar and you apply it with an eyebrow brush. [illegible] that stiff, darkened eff[illegible] hair immediately takes on [illegible] sheen. It does not smear or run into the eyes and it [illegible] the growth of the [illegible]. To obtain the name of this [illegible] lash grower, send a [illegible] self-addressed envelope [illegible] Shelby, Boston Evening American, Boston.

GIVEN IN MARRIAGE —:— By Adele Garrison

Hugh Grantland's invitation to Edith Fairfax to share his car on the moonlight drive, obviously issued to ease Madge's mind, is countermanded by Dicky.

CHAPTER 207

THERE WAS a sudden cessation of chatter in the group around the cars as Hugh Grantland asked Edith Fairfax if she would share his runabout for the moonlight drive to the ocean, which she had proposed. It was so unheard of a thing for Hugh to single out any woman for attention, that his little speech appeared to strike everybody dumb.

Of us all, I think Edith herself was the most astonished and—I guessed—dismayed. I knew, as well as almost everybody else in the group, that she had proposed the moonlight drive to the ocean in the hope that she could maneuver Dicky into taking her in his car "built only for two."

Of course, she had not asked him to take her in that fashion, but had made the proposal for a drive directly to him, and I knew she had wished for two things—to claim Dicky for a tete-a-tete drive, and to make me jealously angry.

A HOPELESS LOVE

This unexpected query of Hugh's had deflated her promptly and thoroughly. If she had been a woman eaten up with inordinate vanity, as is Avis Arlen, she would have been so elated over deflecting from me even so small a part of the attention which Hugh unobtrusively but steadily has given me for years, that she would have forgotten her wish to annex Dicky, in a feeling of triumph over me.

But Edith Fairfax is not a vain woman. Indeed, she is innately one of the finest women I know. Yet she had had the misfortune to fall violently in love with Dicky even before I married him, in the days when she and her sister Leila were struggling futilely to establish themselves as artists in New York, and her hopeless infatuation for him has warped—I almost wrote "wrecked"—her whole life. In all other matters she is high-minded and unselfish, but where Dicky is concerned she is ruthless, and I have the feeling that while she would not stoop to the depths of plotting to which poor, half-crazed Grace Draper descended she would risk much—go to great lengths—if she thought she could win Dicky for herself.

I heard a slight, sibilant intake of Edith's breath, and knew that she was as exasperated as she was astonished. It was not even a sop to the little vanity she possesses, less than that of most women, for I knew she was keen enough to read between the lines of Hugh's words and see exactly what he was trying to do.

It was something I, myself, had seen instantly, although I savagely scored myself for the vanity that prompted the thought. I felt Dicky's sardonic eyes fixed on my face—I did not dare look at him directly, but from underneath my lashes I saw his expression—and in the illy-suppressed grin curving Harry Underwood's lips, I read the same conclusion. This was that Hugh had asked Edith to go with him not from any desire for her company, but on my account; to spare me the pain, as he thought, of seeing her go off alone with my husband.

I was not surprised to hear Dicky intervene, and I was conceited enough to believe that he would not have uttered a word of protest save for his belief that Hugh was staging the request to Edith in order to save me the chagrin of seeing her take Dicky with her.

"Sorry to cut in, old man," Dicky said airily, "but by my halidome, the lady is pledged to me, varlet though I be, for this moonlit trip to the ocean. She hasn't had a chance at one for a long time, and I've been promising her the treat for ages."

"'Treat,' I suppose, being spelled 'the Dicky-bird,' in your modest estimation," Harry Underwood drawled.

"Exactly," Dicky retorted, with a burlesqued cockiness. "Ain't so, Ede'?"

I waited breathlessly for Edith's answer. Was she brazen enough, knowing that almost everyone in the room knew or suspected her feeling for Dicky, to hold him to the offer so patently made as an afterthought and flout Hugh?

Her answer was not long in coming.

"I am so stupid," she said contritely. "Sorry, Hugh, but I had completely forgotten that I had promised Dicky this drive. I know that can't be very soothing to your vanity, Dicky-bird, but it happens to be the truth. I do hope you'll ask me another time, Hugh."

"Consider yourself promised to me for the next moonlight beach party," Hugh said gallantly, and under cover of his words Lee Chow, who had been eyeing him closely, moved nearer to me.

"I have changed my mind," he said. "I do not wish to talk tonight. Perhaps, I, too, shall go to the beach. But, if Hugh asks you—go."

Useful Gifts

DON'T BE AFRAID to give a useful gift for Christmas. The woman interested in her home and in entertaining would probably much rather have an electric chafing dish that she can use for buffet suppers than some purely ornamental gadget that doesn't fit her home. Good Housekeeping Institute gives some excellent suggestions for practical gifts—for instance, coffee makers, that insure good coffee every time.

Winged Sleeves on Wool Dress

By MARIAN MARTIN

Winged sleeves and jabot of contrasting color give this smart "at home" frock a different and spirited air. It's a slenderizing dress as well, a slim skirt hung from a nicely pointed yoke back and front. Darts at the shoulders and gathers at the waistline give just enough fullness throughout the bodice to be becoming, and a kick pleat provides walking freedom. Made in wool with pique sleeve wings and jabot, this frock would be tailored enough to use for street wear; made in a pretty printed cotton it would be a charming frock to wear at home.

Pattern 9205 may be ordered only in size 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards 36 inch fabric and ⅛ yard contrasting.

Send fifteen cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, the style number and size of each pattern.

Dressing Child for Christmas Parties

(Authentic Last Minute Fashions from New York—the Style Center of America.)

By DOROTHY ROE

CHRISTMAS time is party time for the youngest set as well as the grown-ups.

And well-meaning but misguided mothers, in the opinion of Harper's Bazaar, ought to take a tip from the fashion-wise and dress their children in simple party clothes.

Ankle-length dresses of pastel taffeta, for instance, with curls that are not natural, are both unbecoming and uncomfortable for the six-year-old contingent.

Mothers with high I. Q.'s make their youngest daughters' party dresses of soft white or pastel crepe de chine, as short as possible, hanging straight from the shoulder, and innocent of rosebuds and ribbons. Sometimes the little frocks are deeply smocked at the shoulder, in the English manner. Sometimes they have simple round Dutch collars of self material, and perhaps a bow of grosgrain ribbon at the throat.

Correct Attire for Wedding

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My friend and I have been invited to a formal church wedding. May he wear white trousers, brown coat and brown and white shoes or a business suit? Surely a morning suit isn't necessary?

D.

If the wedding is to be in the summer and in the country, it is quite all right for the man guest to wear white trousers and brown coat or better a dark blue coat. But if the wedding is to be in the city, it would be better for him to wear a business suit. Morning suits are strictly correct for men guests to wear at a formal day wedding. But not many men do this nowadays—only men who are punctilious about always being correctly dressed for all occasions.

Triple Bath Coup Is Ace, Jack, Small Hold-Up

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

The Bath Coup, as everyone knows, is simply the hold-up of an Ace by the declarer when the King is led and when the declarer also holds the Jack and one or more small cards. After this play is made, a continuation of the suit will automatically give the declarer two tricks.

The hand below, which I received in the mail the other day, shows a triple Bath Coup. The declarer held up his Ace from Ace-Jack small in not one or two, but three different suits.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	Double	3 ◇ (1)	Pass
3 N T (2)	Pass	Pass	Pass

(1) North's double raise over the intervening takeout double is of course meant to shut out the opponents. North, with some degree of justification, fears an opposing game as he does not know South is as strong as is actually the case.

(2) South of course realizes that his partner's double raise does not show a particularly strong hand but quite correctly decides that with a diamond suit to work with there should be some play for the hand.

West's opening lead was the spade King. South after viewing the dummy, at first glance decided that he had nine sure tricks with a diamond break. However, he suddenly noticed that with any diamond division except the Queen-blank in one of the hands, the diamond suit would be blocked because of the unfortunate fact that the dummy had no higher card than the eight-spot outside of the Ace, and that his own hand had no card lower than the nine. Therefore to insure [illegible] to run the diamond suit South knew he had to make the safety play of deliberately conceding an early round of diamonds to the opponents. If this trick had to be conceded to the East hand and South won the first spade trick with the Ace, East would subsequently be able to lead through the spade Jack, and the contract would be defeated.

South therefore played a low card on the lead of the spade King—the simple Bath Coup.

West now shifted to the heart King and South now held up his Ace in this suit. Having received another low-card signal from his partner, West in desperation now tried the third suit, in which he held a similar combination headed by the King-Queen. South again ducked, and West was now helpless.

He had to lead something, and having received a medium card signal in clubs from his partner, he continued with the Queen of that suit hoping against hope that East had the Jack. South, of course, won the trick with the Ace and now was in a position to safely concede a diamond trick to East to prevent the suit from being blocked. On the lead of the Jack of diamonds, which was ducked in dummy, East shrewdly did not win with his Queen, but South very cleverly led the diamond ten and again played low from dummy. East perforce won with the Queen this time, but now since South had a top card in each of the three remaining suits, the contract was fulfilled. Had South had the lack of foresight to win either of the three King leads with his Ace, his contract would have been defeated as the defense would have been able to run whichever suit South did not hold up in, after East had been conceded a diamond trick.

This Is Life
by
ROBERT E. ROGERS

Considerable interest attaches to the recent remarks of Professor Sam Bass Warner of the Harvard Law School on the subject of free speech for Communists and the proper punishment therefor.

Professor Bass takes his stand firmly on the Bill of Rights of the Constitution — that interesting document which Hendrik Van Loon recently completely confused with the Declaration of Independence — and holds that it is still constitutional in spite of the judges of the Cambridge and the Charlestown courts.

Robert E. Rogers

His remarks are aimed, of course, at the trial of the so-called rioters over at the Navy Yard, in protest against the presence of the Karlsruhe in America, and also at the trial of the few college undergraduates who attempted to demonstrate in Harvard Square on the afternoon of Commencement Day last June.

He feels that in both cases the demonstrators should have been allowed to talk, and that, even if they had insisted in talking without permission, the sentences were excessive, tending to make the Communists feel they were being discriminated against and tending also rather to encourage them to be riotous than to discourage them.

It is a theory which on the face of it sounds psychologically sound. If free speech is repressed it will explode into action; otherwise it will dissipate harmlessly as a colorless gas—a trifle noxious in odor perhaps, but not lethal. Bottle it up, subject it to pressure, and it will blow up the environment.

Signs of Weakness?

Speaking as an educator to another educator, I will say that Professor Warner's theory does little credit to his faith in education. The theory says by implication that neither instruction nor persuasion is possible, both speaker and auditor are without intelligence; all the oratory in the world cannot change opinion one jot.

That strikes me as a somewhat pessimistic view of the art of instruction and persuasion which we call education. It really cannot be true, otherwise all the young New-Deal lawyers in Washington the products of the Harvard Law School would be safe and sane instead of highly empirical, as they are.

The other notion is that if the young radicals are given free speech they will think this is a free country and stop agitating.

Well, Professor Warner may know it, we may know it, but do the young radicals know it?

Will they not rather accept the constitutional rights of free speech and free assembly as merely a sign of weakness in an effete and decaying capitalistic government?

They know perfectly well that the Dialectical Materialists of Moscow would stand no such nonsense.

I have a theory which I suspect could be proved by historical research that once a government begins to give in and give way to the rebellious element it is essentially done for.

Seem Harmless

The first steps seem harmless enough. But facilis descensus averni—the way down is easy and slippery, but it's tough climbing back.

Napoleon Bonaparte, looking on at the sack of the Tuileries by the French mob of August 10, 1792, remarked that a little artillery, properly handled, would have dispersed the mob.

Perhaps it would have avoided or averted the revolution. Later he proved, with the whiff of grape shot that ended the Directorate, that direct action was more efficacious than any amount of paltering and compromising.

I will grant that if Communists and other agitators who insist on staging assemblies and orations without police permits have been accustomed to being given sentences no heavier than those habitually given today for bootlegging or armed robbery or other peccadillos of the sort, they have a right to feel aggrieved if they receive a sentence up to the limit the law allows.

But if our judges as a collective unit would let it be known in advance that sentences for agitation will be habitually heavy, so that there will be no misunderstanding I can see no ground for objection.

Man is given free will on his own responsibility.

If people know what the law is and the penalties therefor and still wish to be martyrs then there is no ground for complaint on either side.

U. S. Agents Trail Revere Killer

Sleuths Here

DILLINGER GANG KILLERS ENTER MANHUNT

The men who "got" Dillinger and his gang are going after New England gangsters next.

Demands that federal agents take over the investigation of gang wars in Revere, in which local police have reported no progress, have brought Department of Justice sleuths into this territory, it was learned today.

Clarence D. McKean, in command of Department of Justice activities here, admitted that the famous "public enemy squad" might be sent to New England, if they are not already secretly on the job. He said:

"If it can be shown that racketeers here have violated any federal law, Department of Justice men will take up the hunt."

In a resolution by the John A Chisholm Camp, United Spanish War Veterans, calling upon United States Attorney-General Homer Cummings to investigate the killing of Nate Siegel in Revere, it was brought out that the use of an auto with Maine registration plates by the machine gunners gave that slaying an interstate character which brought it under federal jurisdiction.

The resolution charged that city, county and state officials knew the perpetrator of the crime and were doing nothing about it.

EVIDENCE SOUGHT

Efforts of Department of Justice men will be concentrated, it was learned, upon getting evidence against former bootleggers, now in the brewery business, who employ gangmen to intimidate rivals.

Siegal, police believe, was killed because he did not serve the "right" beer in his Revere beer parlor. Jack Darrish, intimate friend of Siegal, who was shot down last week, was like Siegal, considered only a small-time figure in Revere gang rivalries.

Wandering boys—and a wandering girl, too—gave Boston police a busy week-end. The girl, stricken with wanderlust at the age of two, tested out the versatility of Mattapan police in entertaining her.

A three-year-old, lost in the West End, aided police in locating his home while a South End five-year-old boy who strayed took matters into his own hands and settled down for a night's sleep in the nearest doorway.

ILLNESS DELAYS SUIT

Angela Joyce, Under Knife, Must Wait

London, Dec. 3—Months must elapse before pretty Angela Joyce, English and Hollywood actress, will unfold in court the tale that she hopes will wring tears from the jury and substantial damages from young Lord Revelstoke, rich scion of a banking family, for alleged breach of promise.

Miss Joyce has just undergone a serious operation for mastoids, and her recovery is expected to be slow.

As a result her suit today was struck off the court's special jury list, and the hearing was indefinitely postponed.

"It may be months, before I'll be well enough to face the ordeal in court," said Angela, propped up in bed in a London nursing home.

She would not talk about the case, since the filing of her complaint put the case "sub judice" and discussing any case out of court when it is under consideration is illegal and would prejudice Angela's chances of winning.

In Hollywood, however, she had told a charmingly domestic story of meals that Lord Revelstoke bought and she cooked in her little flat, and his alleged promise to marry her—until he upped and married somebody else.

Goofy Season Bursts Upon Sports Pages; Landis, Collins Victims ↕ B. C.-H. C. Football Heroines; Halloran Year-Round Official

By AUSTEN LAKE

MY FELLOW COUNTRYMEN, WE are now entering that twittery period in sports journalism, known as the silly stretch, when old skeletons are rattled and new scandals are sniffed up.

Thus we have old Judge Landis threatening to resign if the slinky whippets are allowed to course over the hallowed turf at Braves Field. And we have Eddie Collins being slurred by his discharged managers as a tamperer and meddler with the field affairs of his Red Sox.

Austen Lake

In the first place, you could not lift the old Judge out of his present office as baseball commissioner with a steamwinch, and I have his telegram saying "Piffle, stuff and nonsense. The boys have been smoking opium and chewing hasheesh," by which I gather, in the Judge's quaint way, he denies threatening to resign over the snake bellied hounds.

I am glad about this. Because I would miss the old Judge's amusing antics if, in a fit of spleen, he did retire.

As an act, his mane shaking, stabbing glare and jabbing at your vest buttons with that long, corkscrew finger of his, is one of the most enjoyable in the baseball realm of which he is czar.

The more I know the old man the better I appreciate the figure that lies behind his hammy externals, the property walking stick, the tangled silver plume and crumpled hat and all the affectation which, over the years, have grown into habitual mannerisms.

He once pawned his life insurance to help out a cub reporter who legged around his court. He secretly contributes many thousands of dollars to unfortunates, and he will go out of his way to give a man a leg-up to a job.

I have always suspected that the jutting jaw, X-ray glare and the growly, coroner's voice are holdover affectations from his term as a Federal Circuit judge, when he found them helpful in instilling the proper respect of the law.

In his off-stage moments I have found him sympathetic, and wistful to be properly understood in the manner of a little boy in a strange neighborhood.

I would say that the only way to get him out of the baseball commissioner's job would be to dynamite him out. Nothing so insipid as whippet hounds in a major league ball park would pull up his roots.

IN THE SECOND PLACE, "tampering" and "meddling" with the field affairs of his ball club are the duties of a baseball general manager like Eddie Collins. I have heard Marty McManus say that Collins stuck figurative bits of scrapiron and rubbish into his works when he was manager. And lately I saw a letter, in the fine spencerian script of Bucky Harris, saying about the same thing.

I would ask you, well, what the hell? If Collins, as chief boss, and overseer of Yawkey's $3,000,000 investment, did not meddle and tamper he would be gathering his large salary under false pretense.

Bob Quinn, when he was master of the Fenway property, used to "meddle" in the same way that every other club executive does. He conferred with his managers on field affairs, asking pertinent questions why he did thus and so during ball games.

Only manager who seemed to resent these inquiries was Heinie Wagner, who once flew into a furious tantrum because Bob dared to ask him why he was keeping a certain outfielder on the bench.

Thereafter Bob asked Wagner no more questions, and the two lived apart in a state of mutual feud, until the end of the season when Bob slipped Heinie down a manhole and back to his New Rochelle lumber yard.

I have sat with Collins aloft in his crow's nest above the Fenway park, and have listened to his grunts and whinnies, which were like those of a distressed soul in the throes of remorse.

He would churn his torso this way and that, with body English, trying to root the runs in. But never did he view-hallo to an outfielder or semaphore orders to the bench within my sight.

So, I would ask Marty and Bucky, if this be tampering, whether they expected Collins to assume a meek, pious air of humility in their presence. And also whether the degree of their managing was improved when on the road and away from Collins, which I can say it was not.

GREATER LOVE AND LOYALTY hath no football crowd than that it should huddle on the pine-board slopes during a combination deluge and blizzard such as raged during the B. C.-H. C. game.

Nearly all the 15,000 folk who paid, variously, $3.30 and $2.20, to suffer a skin-deep drenching and to sit peering through the haze of rain under their dripping eyebrows, stayed to the bitter end.

It was a sorry day for the football girls, which, in my eye, are the most gorgeous of all our fellow citizens, surpassing even the pretty ladies which adorn the clubhouse verandas at the Longwood Cricket Club, with their drizzle of summery colors.

The football girls are always young and luscious, being handpicked by their escorts for their pictorial effect. But on Saturday the primped and polychromed lasses were drowned into soggy misshapes, with their finger waved ringlets come loose in stringy wisps and their peacock plumage melted.

It was a form of female heroism that took rank with the slushing, plodding of the mud smeared lads who sloughed through the sticky, chocolate mess, goose puddles and pig wallows of the playing field.

BILL HALLORAN, THE CALMLY-COMPETENT football referee who handled the B. C.-H. C. game Saturday and the Redskin-Brooklyn finale at Fenway yesterday, hustled down to Providence last night to referee the Can-Am League hockey game.

He works the calendar around, football, hockey and baseball, adding to his postoffice salary by some $2000 a year. In my sight he is tops among the college game handlers of the East, placid, infallible, brisk and as impartial as a human cash-register.

Bruins Swap Savage, $10,000 for Portland

By Bill Grimes

Bruins are still building. Today they added Jack Portland of the Les Canadiens and Burr Williams of the St. Louis Eagles to their roster. Portland cost the Bruins $10,000 and Jack Savage.

Portland is a stellar defense man and packs a hard left-handed shot which is badly needed by the present Bruins. He was an amateur star of the Collingwood Ont. hockey league before signing with the Les Canadiens last year. His ability is not confined to hockey, having represented Canada in the last Olympics as a high jumper.

Burr Williams becomes a Bruin in a straight exchange for Archie Wilcox, who has been playing as a member of the Cubs. He will relieve the pressure on Shore in the Bruin defense.

In the custody of their loquacious and, at times, belligerent manager Conn Smythe, the Toronto Maple Leafs will roll into town tomorrow noon, and, after relaxing at the University Club, trek to the Garden for a set to with the Bruins.

As usual, the Leafs are off to an auspicious start with eight victories out of nine starts. They were traveling along unbeaten and untied until they were set back last night in Detroit by the Red Wings.

They were not only beaten but Jack Adams' crew rubbed it in by shutting them out.

It's a real feat to smack down the Maple Leafs at this stage of the Stanley Cup race, to say nothing about keeping them from scoring.

Although they have mastered eight of their first nine opponents the Leafs are not as formidable as they were at this time last season according to reports.

With all the talent he has available, Manager Smythe has not been able to produce any player to fill "Ace" Bailey's shoes, and, until he does, the Leafs will never be as strong as the team that went through to the Stanley Cup in 1933. Of course, the absence of little Joe Primeau, the greatest play maker in the N. H. L., is a handicap to the Leafs.

With Gus Metz, a rookie just out of the junior amateur ranks as their play maker, Chuck Conacher and Busher Jackson have made 15 of the 27 Maple Leaf goals. It is safe to say that with Primeau at center they would have nicked opposing goalies for even a greater number of tallies.

YALE STAFF IS RE-APPOINTED

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 3 (AP)—Headed by Raymond W. (Ducky) Pond, the entire football coaching staff which piloted Yale to the Big Three championship was reappointed today.

The athletic association did not disclose the term or length of the new contracts, its announcement containing just the bare statement that Head Coach Pond and his associates had been retained for the 1935 season. It was generally assumed, however, that the reappointments were for one year.

APPOINTMENT EXPECTED

The retention of Young Pond, former Eli football and baseball star, and his associates on the varsity staff was generally predicted at the close of the 1934 season which brought to the Elis victories over their traditional rivals Princeton and Harvard in addition to Pennsylvania, Dartmouth and Brown.

Besides Pond, the varsity staff consists of Earle (Greasy) Neale, master gridiron strategist who was in charge of the backfield; Denny E. Myers, line coach; and Ivan B. Williamson, who was in charge of the ends.

This quartet was named last January in a drastic shake-up that followed a poor 1933 season.

Neale, former big league baseball player, and Myers were brought to Yale from West Virginia, while Williamson came here from Michigan where he was captain of the Big Ten champion eleven of 1932.

In piloting Yale to a victory over Harvard, Pond maintained intact his record of never losing to a Crimson Eleven either as a player or coach.

Notre Dame Off for Pacific Coast

Most of the Holy Cross gains in its victory, 7 to 2, over Boston College on Saturday, were due to off tackle plays, run frequently on a half spinner with Nick Morris carrying. Here the photo and diagram show clearly how one of these half spinners through tackle worked against B. C. Morris takes the ball on direct pass from center, turns to fake a pass to another back, then spins back and races for the tackle. His running was largely responsible for the H. C. win. He scored the touchdown in the fourth period. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

"Old Locomotive" Misses First N. Y. Race in 21 Years

By International News Service

New York, Dec. 3.—There has to be a "13" in it to keep iron man Reggie McNamara out of a six-day bicycle grind.

"Old Locomotive" didn't get off the mark in his 113th start when Jack Dempsey cracked the starting pistol in Madison Square Garden.

Entered to wear the famous black colors and sport his usual "No. 1" in the race, he didn't get off. It was the first time in 21 years that old Mac was unable to start.

The battered old hero of 112 grinds reported in person but even then it was plain that a fever which was raging within the "iron man" had come along to keep him out of the present race. He started as a new star from Australia in Old Madison Square Garden in 1913. Last night he was to have started with Dave Lands, an old timer like himself.

New York, Dec. 3.—The team of George Dempsey, Australia and Bobby Thomas, Kenosha, Wis., were leading the pack after the tenth hour of the grind in the six-day bike race at Madison Square Garden.

The standings:

By H. R. Hardwick

(All-Time All-America End at Harvard)

In picking this All-Star team, selected from players I have personally seen this season, I realize only too well the impossibility of any one football critic making an absolutely just selection. Furthermore, I saw in action the majority of these men but once.

A player occasionally develops a burst of positive genius and for a single afternoon goes berserk, only to sink back into mediocrity in his other games.

Likewise a recognized star occasionally suffers through an off day in which he appears very ordinary. I am judging purely by the play of the day on which I saw them.

MORANDOS AT TACKLE

In one case, that of Morandos I have placed him out of his regular position.

His all-around exhibition against Harvard, however, was of a calibre that demands recognition and I am convinced that he would show ability as a tackle equal to that shown as a center. In other words he was just too good to be left out.

The teams from which this group is selected are Army, Bates, Brown, Dartmouth, Harvard, Holy Cross, Princeton and Yale.

Forced to pass, the outlook is no brighter—what with Kadlic and Roscoe and Hobin guarding the zones, each a past master in the fine art of tossing passes and equally alert in protecting against them.

PASS DEFENSE MASTERS

Or turn the picture around and imagine your feeling in attempting to stem the lightning thrusts of those fast, shifty, and elusive backs led by a bruising interferer like Stancook and with a running guard, either Stillman or Hagerman, adding fuel to the flames, never being sure that the pass would not eventually develop into a forward or a lateral pass, equally dangerous whether executed by Kadlic or Roscoe or Hobin.

Think of . . . yes, you think of it! I can't any longer. It makes me too nervous.

West End House Wins

Brooklyn Y. M. H. A. basketball quintet lost a hard fought game to the West End House five, 36 to 21, at the latter team's court. Raltman, at guard for the winners, was high scorer with 11 points.

EVERETT AFTER PAIGE-HODGE PIN TEST

By Ed. Cogswell

O[illegible] Paige [illegible] and Hodge together for a match of twenty strings, ten to be rolled in Everett and ten in Malden.

The two came near meeting a year ago, both of the experts of the candlepins claiming they were willing to clash, but one thing after another interfered till the season rolled around and ended.

Now the talk is up once more, with every reason to expect the fans will have the pleasure of rooting for their favorite.

Paige is one of the old-timers at the bowling game, being 70 years of age, but he can still roll the same [illegible], accurate ball of old. Hodge, his expected opponent, is no slouch at the game, and the match is bound to attract a big crowd.

Frankie Mack is still holding forth at the Hawley Alleys. What Mack would like is to have a bowling alley fitted like a club with lounging rooms, a select billiard parlor and all of the fixings going to complete a handsome emporium.

Drop in and see Bill Winch of the South Station alleys if you want to learn all about bowling and the old days of the sport.

Bill was several years with Jack Munsey in the Casino alleys in Worcester, then the Mecca for bowlers from all parts of New England. Bill will relate the story about the father of the candlepin game.

Navy Line and Punter Beat Army---Little

By Lou Little

Head Coach, Columbia University Football Team

(Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service)

New York, Dec. 3—Even in these modern days when the football attack is marked by so many of the ramifications of the open game, it is still true that the battle of the forward lines is usually the decisive factor.

That is especially true when two elevens are forced to fight [illegible] in Field Saturday.

So, after all is said and done, it was the decisive edge held by Rip Miller's Navy line over Army's forwards that provided probably the winning margin as the Midshipmen won their first triumph over the West Pointers in 13 years.

Slade Cutter's perfectly executed field goal from the 20-yard line provided the actual points in the 3-0 victory; the fine running of Buzz Borries was a great factor in making Navy dangerous through most of the muddy battle, and the remarkable kicking and great defensive play of Bill Clark were important features in this triumph which crowned so successfully the first year of Lieutenant Tom Ham[illegible]

But without this Navy forward line, which showed the superior charge, both offensively and defensively, the victory probably would not have come.

In such conditions as these, it is impossible to run effectively to the outside. The power plays are best, and the team with a first-class line and a good kicker will carry the day.

That, in a word, tells the story of Navy's victory. Clark's kicking and his defensive play, with that of Robertshaw, his companion backer-up behind the Navy line, were as fine as any coach might have asked.

It was Clark's fine punt and the smart work of Bob Dornin, Navy end, in batting it out at the one-yard line, which were the crucial plays putting Army in the hole and enabling Navy to surge forward to the score in the first quarter.

It seemed to me, two or three plays before Cutter's placement kick, that Navy's judgment might have been better if the midshipmen had resisted the temptation on the seven-yard line to send Borries outside on the end-run which was spilled for a loss.

On such a field as this, with the Army defense set up as it was, the inside plays are best, and Borries had been gaining at the tackles.

However, midshipman Cuter was there with his fine placement ready in the emergency as a prospective naval officer should be and the midshipmen were enable to capitalize on what might have been an embarrassing situation.

Tufts Dinner Tomorrow

Phelan to Coach Medford Sextet

Dick Phelan former Holy Cross football captain, at present line coach at Medford High School, will coach the members of the newly organized Medford Hockey Club, which is composed of former college and scholastic stars.

The sextet boasts such stars as Bob Chipman, former Hebron Academy flash; Paul Kenney, ex-all-scholastic goalie from Medford high; Mark Dondero, Frankie Newton, Gordon Peckham, Eddie Riley and Sonny Irving.

Lester Gaffney, who was responsible for the return of the ice sport at Medford High School, is manager.

NEW KAYO KING ARRIVES HERE FOR CARR GO

Warrington will work at Kelley and Hayes' gymnasium for the remainder of this week in preparation for his ten round contest with Steve Carr of Waterbury, Conn., one of Ray Cass' three 10 round features at the Boston Arena on Friday night.

Warrington is meeting in Carr a battler who is favorably well known to Boston boxing fans. He is well able to test the mettle of the new Sam Langford.

Andy Callahan of Lawrence, who is known not only for his fighting ability but for his quick Irish wit, makes the statement that Billy Stevens had better have a net around the Arena ring to catch his battler Jackie Davis, when I knock him through the ropes.

The third ten-round bout on Admiral Cass' great show will see the latest sensation in New England boxing circles, Fanis Tzanatopolous, the "Greek Tiger," clashing with Buster Price, hard punching Lynn light-heavyweight who knocked out Mickey Bishop of Stoughton at the Lynn Arena.

Buddy Would Croon

Dick Hanley Redskin Chief, Tom Keady at Brooklyn, Is Likely Pro Lineup

By Bill Grimes

Since that Boston College-Holy Cross washout, the playing of which was a rank injustice to fans, coaches and players, hundreds of protests have started the authorities thinking. Steps will be taken to avert a repetition of such a farce. Regardless of from what angle you look at [illegible], that game should positively have been postponed.

It was unfair to the fans, particularly those who had co-operated with the B. C. and H. C. athletic associations to the extent of purchasing tickets in advance, to insist that they sit in open stands under such weather conditions. The coaches, Joe McKenney and Dr. Eddie-Anderson, labored night and day for months preparing their squads for their major game.

Because of the elements they were unable to show the results of their work. There's nothing in the sport ritual to make it mandatory for games to be played under such adverse conditions. The Boston College and Holy Cross exchequers were the real sufferers for the 'take' failed to reach the budget figures.

St. Mary's and Santa Clara play Sunday football on the Coast, and there's no reason why Saturday's game could not have been played yesterday or even next Saturday. From a financial viewpoint, today would have returned a healthier gate than Saturday. Dr. Anderson has not decided whether or not he will study medicine here this winter.

The Redskin - Dodger game wound up the pro football season in these parts and also the careers of the respective coaches; that is, as far as their connections with Boston and Brooklyn are concerned. In the event that the Northwestern athletic director is retained, Dick Hanley is the logical successor to Bill "Lone Star" Dietz. Tom Keady, who is coaching at Lowell High has the inside track on the Brooklyn Dodger berth.

Johnny Karcis and Chris Cagle, former All-America players with the Dodgers, got into a jam over a loan yesterday, and the ex West Pointer sounded off on the Carnegie Tech dreadnought. Karcis is 50 pounds heavier than Cagle, but apparently that was not sufficient edge to warrant him mixing it up with the Kaydet . . . According to Billy Kerrigan, Brooklyn business manager, Herman Hickman, the Dodger guard, has a most retentive mind, even to the extent of reciting Keats and Shelley.

Kerrigan, who was one of the best football and baseball players at Brookline high school 30 years ago, did not return to Brooklyn last night. He will visit with his folks for a few days before he starts to revamp the Dodgers for next season . . . After eight straight wins, the Maple Leafs were knocked off by the Red Wings.

Frank Patrick had his Bruins all primed to pull off that feat but Jack Adams beat him to it . . .Bill Stewart will make his initial appearance of the season at the Garden tomorrow night when the Bruins clash with Maple Leafs. A throat infection sent the popular hockey referee and baseball umpire to a Montreal hospital recently, but he is back again in the well known "pink" . . . Jack Manders, former Gopher and current Chicago Bears star, has a brother in the freshman class at Minnesota, who, it is reputed, is as powerful as Stan Kostka and more versatile.

Shortly after the holidays, Mrs. Nelson Stewart, wife of the Bruin captain, will go to Florida for the winter . . . According to reports, Big Ten proselytors are now high pressure salesmen. As a result the present freshmen conference classes are loaded with football material, especially Indiana, where "Bo" McMillin is a threat to win the title.

The Cub fans are now not only reconciled to but highly elated over the shift that put their puck chasers back in the Arena. Their claim is that the Arena is more homey, and they get a kick out of being closer to the scene of action . . . Illinois is listed to play Southern California next season, so Coach Bob Zuppke will go out to the Coast and scout the Trojans during the coming Notre Dame game . . . "Sweeney" Schriner, the rookie who is breaking in with the Americans, played in Syracuse last season. Although it was his first year in pro hockey, he scored 28 points.

Before they credit Art Wiebe Chicago Blackhawks, with the title of "Bandage King" Bill 'Flash' Hollett should be given careful consideration. He has taken "Hap" Day's drug store out of the "red" . . . Before he returns to Evanston, Head Coach Dick Hanley, Northwestern, who came East for the Notre Dame-Army and Army-Navy games, will pay a visit to his brother "Pat," the Boston University mentor. Dick says that his Wildcats did not get going until the far end of the season, but [illegible] five lettermen he [illegible] next season, despite the terrible schedule he has to play.

Braves Remain Only Hope of Ruth as Pilot in '35

By Bill Slocum

New York, Dec. 3—Quiet has settled on the Babe Ruth puzzle after a spell of rumors which had the Babe managing first one club, and then annother, in 1935.

The baseball meetings, to be held here in a little more than a week, are expected to bring the Ruth problem to the fore again.

A definite announcement is expected concerning Bill McKechnie's status with the Boston Braves, and that answer will determine whether or not Babe is to be a manager in 1935.

The Braves remain the only possibility of Babe realizing his ambition for next season. If McKechnie is signed, or if he comes to New York to work on 1935 plans, then Babe must wait.

Friends of Ruth do not expect to see him retire from the game, as he threatened, in the event that a managerial job is not offered to him for next year.

Whether Babe has the highest regard for the managerial ability of Joe McCarthy, or whether McCarthy is unenthusiastic over Babe remaining with the club, now that the Bam has spoken his little piece, does not mater.

BABE RUTH

Many a big league manager is none too keen for a certain player, and many a player is not enthusiastic about his manager. But they don't retire from baseball on that acount, particularly when the big money is to be had.

If Colonel Ruppert decides that Ruth will be worth keeping, for his drawing power, week-end appearances and for playing exhibition games it is quite likely that McCarthy will be agreeable.

He would hardly turn down a $37,500 job rather than boss a Yankee team of which Ruth is a member.

If Babe is offered a salary which interests him, he is not likely to spurn it because Joe McCarthy happens to be the manager.

Unless Babe is named manager of the Braves at the meetings here on December 11, look for him to continue as pinch hitter and occasionally player for the 1935 Yankees.

Rangers Willing to Spend $100,000

New York, Dec. 3 (INS)—Alarmed by the inability of the New York Rangers to get started in the National Hockey League and the increasing popularity of the Americans, the city's other team, Colonel John Hammond, president of the Rangers, declared he was ready to spend $100,000 for players.

"But we can't get them," the Colonel moaned. "No one has shown the slightest disposition to deal with us.

CRIMSON TIDE ELEVEN FAST, DECEPTIVE

University, Ala., Dec. 3 (AP)—A new type of Alabama football team will invade Rose Bowl at Pasadena on New Year's Day—an eleven that relies on speed and deception, instead of the power of its three precedessors.

The line is just as hefty as those previous forward walls, using its power to smother the attack, and to give the fast breaking backs a better chance to form interference and get underway.

In every maneuver there is coordination, and the squad as a whole is one of the most willing to aid a teammate, even though it means headines for "the other fellow."

End runs, reverses, fake reverses, triple passes, an end around end, long and short passes and just straight football go into its repertoire of plays.

HOWELL SPEARHEAD

The spearhead of the attack is Millard (Dixie) Howell, speedy and elusive triple threat halfback. He is the marked man in every game, a large part of the deception that gives Jimmy Angelish, his halfback teammate; Joe Demyanovich, fullback, and Riley Smith, quarterback, a chance to get underway.

Howell, slender and almost fragile looking, has taken more punishment than any other man on the squad, but so well have his teammates blocked that he has been able to maintain his average yards of more than six yards per try this year.

Not quite so fast, but a little hefter, Angelich slants off tackles and around ends from reverses, and directs plays, and has developed into an excellent defensive man.

Smith, a triple threat man in his own right, was a fullback until this year, when Coach Frank Thomas converted him into a blocking quarterback.

When Demyanovich matriculated he had never played football. He showed natural ability and, this year as a senior, he is ranked as one of tch best fullbacks in Dixie.

HUSKY TACKLES

Both are fast, going down under punts well. Each has speed enough to gaon ground consistently on an end around end play. Hutson has fe wequals as a pass receiver.

Tackle berths are held by two big husky fellows with tremendous strength. One is anchored by Captain Bill Lee and the other by Jim Whatley, almost as big as Lee who tips 222 pounds.

As for guards, Charlie Marr has developed into one of the finest guards in the South this year, weighing 214 pounds. He uses his heft aggressively.

Kavanaugh Francis, center, weighing in at 200 pounds, is a fine man backing the line on the 6-2-2-1 defense.

In reserve strength this year's eleven is probably better than any other. The backfield loses a little in weight in substitutions, but picks up in speed. The line loses little in weight or aggressiveness.

Show Flossy Attack Against Dodgers; Win 13-3

By Joe Cashman

The Boston Redskins are headed for their respective homes today, and the taste they left in the mouths of their followers can only be described as bitter sweet.

All season it was charged that the local pro gridders fell shy of greatness because they lacked such weapons as forwards and laterals, deceptive running plays and a goal line punch.

And their play in most games substantiated the allegations.

Then, in the final appearance, they stepped out to display all these talents and many more as they swarmed all over the Brooklyn Dodgers to the tune of 13 to 3 up at Fenway Park.

They scored a touchdown in the first period on a pass from Wycoff to Battles, which was good for a gain of 40 yards.

They put over another touchdown in the third period when after getting first down on the 15-yard line, a basketball pass from McPhail to Tosi was good for 13 yards and McPhail plunged the rest of the distance.

12,000 SEE GAME

They bobbed up with plays that shook backs loose for gains of all the way from 20 to 45 yards. They made such thoroughbred alien carriers as Chris Cagle, "Shipwreck" Kelly and Cliff Montgomery look like so many selling platers and foiled every scoring attempt of the enemy, except a phenomenal 44-yard placement kick at a most difficult angle by Ralph Kercheval.

The sparkling performance thrilled a crowd of more than 12,000 but, when it was over, one couldn't but regret that the Redskins hadn't found themselves a few weeks earlier.

If the natives had clicked as well in October and November as they did in December, they and not the New York Giants would now be making ready to meet the Chicago Bears in the championship play-off and Coach Lone Star Dietz wouldn't be wondering what job, if any, he might have next season.

It's most unlikely that this sparkling farewell showing will save the scalp of the mentor, but not a few of the players earned a 1935 contract on the strength of their play.

Especially is this true of "Pug" Rentner, All-America back from Northwestern, of whom much was expected but little was received in previous games.

For the first time this season the big Westerner wasn't bothered by a lame back and he convinced local fans that he had been deserving of the "All" honors bestowed upon him.

He warded off a flock of would-be tacklers and raced through a broken field for 45 yards late in the first half. He came from nowhere to pull a lateral out of the ozone and gallop 30 yards early in the second half.

He intercepted one pass and carried the ball back 50 yards to pave the way for the second Boston touchdown. He also stole a forward out of the hands of Riblett, enemy end, on the Redskins' 20 to prevent a certain touchdown.

Battles, bothered by a lame leg, was still far ahead of any other back in pro ranks. His catch of the touchdown forward would have been impossible for any other player in the league.

Another worthy who came to life with a bang was "Turk" Edwards, giant tackle, who finished the game with a lip that was split down to his chin. He scattered the bones of hostile backs all over the premises and cleared away the debris by wiping up the field with opposite forwards.

His prize contribution, though, was the interception of a forward and a run back of 40 yards. Those who saw the man mountain stepping full steam a head will never forget the spectacle.

105,000 FOR SEASON

Brooklyn had little in the way of attack except forwards, and the Redskins had a pair of bruisers covering every eligible pass receiver. So the visitors completed only two of more than a score of flings.

They did show a mighty guard in Hickman and a lot of fight, which they wasted arguing with the officials and exchanging heated words with the Dietzmen.

The crowd, officially numbering 12,641, was surprisingly large considering that nothing more than possession of second place in the Eastern division was at stake in the game.

That gathering brought the total attendance for the seven home games to approximately 105,000 or an average of 15,000 a contest.

Considering that it rained two Sundays and that the Redskins had a bad slump in mid-season, the only conclusion to be drawn from the figures is that the popularity of the pro grid game is increasing by leaps and bounds in this man's town.

BULL DEMANDS LENIENT 'REF'

The Bull realizes that if he gets a little freedom with his kicks, punches, strangles, gouges, bites and other shady tactics, he can win.

The winner of the Mercier-Martin bout will be in line for a clash with Bob "Bibber" McCoy, N. E. heavyweight mat champion and holder of the $500 diamond-studded belt.

McCoy recently took the title from Mercier who is gunning for a return match but who may wind up something of a human wreck if Martin is able to carry out his threats.

In the semifinal Rebel Bob Russell wil face Gene Ledoux while special bouts will be Bull Komar vs. Red O'Dell and Tommy Rae vs. Leo Hyatt. Both Russell and Rae are among the McCoy challengers.

Shuler Named Army Captain

West Point, N. Y., Dec. 3—Cadet William C. Shuler, El Monte, Cal., has been unanimously elected captain of the 1935 Army eleven. He is an end.

Shuler, a third string tackle last year, has been prominently mentioned for all-America wing honors this year.

Grid Coaches Will Attend K. C. 'Night'

A football night, sponsored by Allston and Brighton Knights of Columbus, will be held Wednesday evening at the William Howard Taft school, Brighton. Bill McKenney, brother of the Boston College grid mentor, will be master of ceremonies, assisted by Huntlet, McIsaac, Grand Knight of Allston Council, George P. Kane, Grand Knight of the Brighton Council, Henry McInerney, Joe McManus, Hilary Shea, Frank Kean, Leo Peterson, Leo Roache, Ed Flanagan and Frank Dowling.

JOE McKENNEY

The program will get started at 8 p. m. The public is invited.

Breaks Swim Mark

Providence, R. I., Dec. 3—With a time of 2 43 2-5, one-fifth of a second better than the old mark Johnny Higgins of the Olneyville Boys' Club, broke the American and New England 220-yard indoor breaststroke record in a N. E. A. A. U. open event here.

RICE MAINSTAY OF N. U. FIVE

Because of Merty Rice's versatility Al McCoy, Husky basketball coach, has but to find either a capable center or forward in order to shape out his varsity quintet.

The 175-pound former all-scholastic back, who captained the Chelsea Red Devils, has shown an aptitude for both the pivot and wing posts.

Since McCoy has several good guards, and a brilliant sharpshooter in Captain Heath Morse at forward, the sturdy sophomore could fill in the open position can the N. U. coach but decide on a forward or center.

Dalton Wrestles in Gordon Show

Lefty Dalton, Mid-West mat sensation, will make his local debut tomorrow evening at Mechanics Building, where he collides with Senor Lopez in one of the prelims of Charlie Gordon's ten-bout card.

Featuring the all star card will be the appearance of Jack Sharkey the former heavyweight boxing champion, in the capacity of referee. He will officiate the championship fray between Tony Papalino, light heavyweight titleholder, and Winn Robbins.

2 NEW RECORDS ACCEPTED FOR TURF BOOK

By Associated Press

New York, Dec. 2—Two world record performances on the American turf during the 1934 season give promise that the entire list of racing records may be revised during the next few years as thoroughbreds take advantage of the opportunities afforded by the fast tracks being constructed throughout the nation.

A. G. Vanderbilt's Discovery cracked the world record for a mile and three-sixteenths in New England, running the distance in 1.55. The former world mark, 1.55 3-5, was set by Sir Barton at Saratoga in 1920.

Col. E. R. Bradley's Barred Event equalled the world mark for a mile and an eighth in Florida, racing it in 1.48 2-5 to share the record jointly with Hot Toddy which set it at Belmont in 1929.

The very fact that faster tracks are aiding thoroughbreds in improving their time records will leave in dispute the age-old question of whether the race horses of the present day are the equals or superiors of the turf immortals of the past.

The Churchill Downs track has been resurfaced and never before had been so fast the day Twenty Grand broke the Kentucky Derby record in 1931, running the mile and a quarter in 2 01¼. On the same afternoon, Gallant Knight ran 6½ furlongs in 1:16 1-5, breaking the world record.

Twenty Grand was not extended in setting the Derby record, which still was much slower than Whiskbroom II's disputed world record of two minutes flat. Yet it was the fastest mile and a quarter run in many years.

By Bill Corum

New York, Dec. 3—Most of these players I have never seen play. If I had, some of them probably wouldn't be on there. It would be just my luck to have to watch them have their worst day of their careers.

Last season I put two Pacific Coast players I had never seen on my first all-team. One of them was from Stanford, the other from U. S. C.

It so happened that later I had a chance to see them play. Or rather I covered games in which they were on the playing field [illegible] siders who had just been [illegible] the eleven.

This is not a knock at the players. You will please note that they are not mentioned by name. Nor is it a knock on P. C. football. No doubt both young men had had their days. Days in which they were warmer than the depot stove at Christmas.

All I am doing is pointing out the futility of all All-Americans. They are a nice gesture to the kids who have gone through a tough grind of training and, on the average, eight hard games. Otherwise all all-teams come to exactly the same thing the little boy shot at.

SMOOCHUMS TO FORE

Naturally I have the customary number of letters, telegrams and personal tips about such and such from so and so, who just can't be kept off any "honest" All-America team. And why on earth would anybody want to pick a dishonest All-America?

Of late the boosters have got so they don't wait to write any more. They rush to the nearest telegraph office right after the game and wire you all about hoosis's spectacular performance against [illegible] wash.

It's like the fight managers of another era, when the first guy to the wire got the decision in the next town, even though at the same moment he was sending the telegram, tender hands were assembling his fighter, piece by piece and trying to fit him together again like a jig-saw puzzle.

Also like the press box announcer of those colleges that have an All-America candidate.

"Smoochums is now carrying the ball," he will bellow in your ear through his dandy little megaphone. "Smoochums gains twenty yards through tackle."

Whereupon you look at the number of the guy carrying the ball, consult your official program, and discover that in reality the fellow who made the run wasn't considered important enough to list. And further, that at the moment Smoochums is limping out of the park on his way home to a warm supper.

So I say, pay no attention to this All-America. It is as good as yours, and as good as the next fellow's, and there are a hundred thousand others like it.

Put all these nice healthy young men together on the same team and they might spell alphabet soup against, let us just say at random, Yale, Rutgers, or N. Y. U.

GARBISCH AND WALSH

At least twice I remember sitting in press boxes watching a fellow named Adam Walsh, of Notre Dame making a chap named Ed Garbisch, of Army, look like Adam's own little Eva.

But was Adam the first man on that season's All-Americas? No [illegible] Reynolds [illegible] Steen of Syracuse [illegible] those printed above.

[illegible] Rose Bowl [illegible] year [illegible] was not finding [illegible] Messrs. Reynolds and Steen, respectively. The difficulty was in finding the Messrs. Reynolds and Steen.

The difference being that few will recall the names of the young [illegible] Columbia [illegible] look [illegible] names in any All-America [illegible] including those printed above.

With which we leave our All-Americas with you without individual comment on the players. I [illegible] about [illegible] I have picked them under my own hat. To the last man they are good to their folks.

HOUSING PLAN HOLDS GREAT PROMISE

By HUGH L. BRADSHAW

James A. Moffett

When [illegible] tary Ickes [illegible] istrator M[illegible] ganiz[illegible] should h[illegible] the hom[illegible] struction [illegible] gram, [illegible] broke [illegible] the [illegible] wrote [illegible] no matter [illegible] won out [illegible] sorely pressed construction industries would be benefited. New [illegible] that the President's flair for conciliation and compromise has resulted in two separate programs. Secretary Ickes will have some of his wishes granted in order to further relief plans and Housing Administrator Moffett will carry on his efforts to aid private capital in the erection of homes. It is a happy conclusion to a situation that could have been more than ordinarily upsetting to those who want peace.

The success of the housing plans will have a marked effect on business activity. This year the climb upward started in September, as compared with November last year and August in 1932. The two previous years had no worth-while fall movements. The point we want to bring out is that a successful construction program might result in a continuous upcurve in activity for the next six months. This, of course, attributable to a literal merging of the fall and spring rises of 1934-35. The thing that makes this quite possible is the slow, deliberate manner in which the fall rise has started. A nearby building boom will assure the correctness of this forecast.

Shorts: Coupled with the trade outlook is the 1935 view for commodity prices. They are expected to work from 5 to 10 per cent higher . . . And on the soundest sort of reasoning . . . Supply and demand . . . While the future holds cheer for the owners of building and construction shares the near term may uncover some reactions in these groups for technical reasons . . . In fact one or two of the higher priced issues have already started to trend downward after fairly sizeable runups.

The Dow Jones averages have completed their eighteenth month in a rut that defied all attempts of traders to pry them out on either the upside or downside. The industrials have made one try for freedom on the upside while the rails have threatened to break loose on the downside. With the brightening trade picture and signs of a recovery alliance between the administration and business there is every reason to hope that the long stalemate is ended and early 1935 will find prices out in the clear.

Briefs: The encouraging factors noted above when considered with the position of trade and the averages themselves warrant the strong bull stand of intermediate traders . . . Incidentally those who do not think [illegible] ing itself [illegible] averag[illegible] back in the early 192[illegible] practically the same type of action [illegible] the prosperity wave which [illegible] 1926 [illegible] the [illegible] concerned.

From a near term view the market seems inclined to react judged by the character of the recent rise this reaction could be decidedly selective. On Saturday we noted a fairly long list of issues to avoid for the time being. We would continue to look elsewhere than among those issues for purchases with the idea that after 4 to 6 point dips from recent top they will be in more advantageous buying zones. From a long term view the reaction will afford traders to take on base positions for a good rise.

Wall Streeters Are Cheerful As New Week Opens

By WALL STREET SPECTATOR

[illegible]

So far this year there have been little more than 300,000,000 shares traded, or less than at any previous comparable period since 1924. In the boom time days of 1929 turnover for the 11 months ended November was 1,011,000,000 shares.

Wall Street is still buying corn on every dip.

Local commission houses have been consistent buyers of corn options on even small dips. There has been a surprising amount of buying for sold out longs who took profits around the 80-cent mark.

One source points out that with the corn crop deficit of about 640,000,000 bushels, buying of the entire 73,000,000 bushels of France's surplus of low grade wheat, along with the 100,000,000 bushels available in the Argentine and South Africa, there would still leave a substantial deficit.

The almost universal bullishness in the street is almost always the signal for a retreat by the discreet. The manner in which the rails have been acting is also somewhat disquieting. Their action is not so puzzling when it is considered in light of the fact that only 11 of the 44 major carriers will earn their fixed charges this year.

BOSTON STOCKS ARE LOWER

Leading issues worked to lower levels in Boston Stock Exchange dealings today. Trading was dull and price changes were small.

Eastern Gas & Fuel prior preferred lost about 2 and American Woolen was down more than 1.

Atchison, New England Telephone [illegible]

Diamond Match Income Higher

Diamond Match Co. and subsidiaries report for nine months ended Sept. 30, 1934, consolidated net of $1,594,513 after depreciation, federal taxes, etc., equivalent after dividend [illegible] on 6 per cent preferred stock, to $1.31 a share on 700,000 shares of common. This compares with $1,530,658, or $1.21 a share in the nine months of 1933.

For quarter ended Sept. 30, 1934 [illegible] comparison [illegible] for six months [illegible] nine months ended September 30), was $551,097 after charges and taxes, equal to 47 [illegible] common, against [illegible] 7 or 46 cents a share in preceding quarter and $530,430, or 43 cents a share in September quarter of previous year.

Grains Higher in Chicago Trading

Chicago, Dec. 3 (INS)—Grain futures continued on the upgrade [illegible] eign markets. Trade was fairly active and featured by lighter offerings of wheat. Wheat opened ⅛ [illegible] up, corn ⅛ to ¼c higher and oats ⅛ to 1c up.

Prices Narrow in Quiet Bond Trading

By Associated Press

New York, Dec. 3—The bond market was slow in developing a trend today and dealings in the corporate sector and U. S. governments were in most cases within small fractions of Saturday's finals. Trading was quiet.

Announcement of the Treasury's December financing program which will involve an offering of 3⅛ per cent notes to run for 18 years, the longest term offering since 1931, prompted substantial volume of "adjustment" transactions in the government list although the early price changes were narrow.

There were sizeable dealings in the Treasury 3⅛s around 100.29 off 3-32ds of a point from Saturday, [illegible] 3s of 1951-55 at par off 3-32ds, and in the 3s of 1946-48 at 100.5 unchanged. Treasury 3⅜s of 1[illegible] were 2-32ds higher at 109.19. The [illegible] were steady with Home Owners Loans 3s and 4s a share higher.

Slightly higher prices were paid for American & Foreign Powers 5s, which were transferred at 53, American Telephone 5s at 100½, Chile Copper 5s at 79⅛, Consolidated Gas 5½s at 106¼, International Telephone 5s at 61⅛, North American 5s at 83⅛, Texas Corporation 5s at 103⅛ and United Drug 5s at 87½.

Estimate Gain in Steel Operations

New York, Dec. 3 (AP)—Another small gain in steel operations to 28.8 per cent of capacity was estimated for the current week by the American Iron & Steel Institute today.

This compares with a schedule of 28.1 per cent last week, 26.3 per cent a month ago and 28.3 per cent for the corresponding week last year.

The gain over the previous week was 7 of a point or 2.5 per cent was 7 of a point or 25 per cent.

The estimated production for this week is the highest named by the institute since last July.

Remington Rand Sales Are Larger

Sales of typewriters by Remington Rand, Inc., since August have been greater in units than any other company in the industry. During these months all models except the standard size machine [illegible] competitors. This is the first time [illegible] that Remington has led the industry in unit sales.

Remington Rand continues to operate at a profit and by the end of January the deficit in profit and loss account accumulated during the depression should be completely wiped out. Benefit of the recent price advance on standard models will begin to be felt some time in December.

American Capital Pays on Preferred

American Capital Corp. declared a dividend of 75 cents on the $3 preferred stock on account of accumulations, payable Dec. 24 to stock of record Dec. 10.

Perfect Circle to Pay Quarterly

Daily Stock Analysis

COMPANY—Sherwin - Williams. A completely integrated unit in the paint and varnish trade. Operates own lead and zinc mines, linseed crushing mills, pigment and chemical plants. Makes and sells complete paint line, varnish, shellac, lacquer, enamel, pigment, dye, disinfectant, insecticides as well as other chemical products.

CAPITALIZATION—No funded debt. An issue of 150,125 shares of 6 per cent cumulative preferred of par $100 callable at $105 is senior to 633,027 shares of $25 par common. Latter listed on New York Curb. Financial condition is very strong. Cash and governments alone are twice total current liabilities.

EARNINGS—In fiscal year ended last August $5.29 per share was earned on common. This compares with $3.54 in previous year. Prospects are good for continued growth of earnings. An enlarged demand for paint for industrial purposes is seen for 1935 and this better business should find immediate reflection in the income account.

DIVIDENDS—The excellent financial condition of company enables directors to be liberal in the matter of disbursements. So far this year $2.50 per share has been paid out to common holders. Payments were maintained throughout the depression. Policy of past indicates liberal payments in year following good returns.

COMMENT—While Sherwin-Williams is undoubtedly selling at levels discounting much expected cheer, the fact is that in a period of revival it receives such a high investor rating that buyers usually keep it well ahead of actual operating results. This together with outlook for increased dividends will tend to maintain this condition.

Cotton Lower in New York Trading

New York, Dec. 3 (INS)—Cotton futures continued reactionary today, with selling particularly heavy on more distant options, where the losses ran to 25 cents a bale.

Mid-day quotations were off 1 to 5 points, with Dec. of 1 at 12.45; March off 2 at 12.57; May off 2 at 12.57; July off 2 at 12.49, and Oct. off 5 at 12.19.

EXPECT UPTURN IN BUSINESS ACTIVITY

By B. C. FORBES

[illegible] New York:

B. C. Forbes

"In general," it says, "the situation shows that the chief industries have passed through the resting period and entered the upturn, or will soon do so. It is probable that the average business man would welcome nothing more heartily at this time, and that nothing would be more beneficial in the situation, than a respite from changes in labor cost levels and labor policies, coupled with convincing assurance that the value of the dollar would not be altered, either by intent or by pushing fiscal policies to dangerous extremes. Given such conditions the constant effort of millions of individuals to make the adjustments necessary to improve business would have an effect far more stimulating than is now possible, in view of the incalculable nature of the chief influences in the economic situation."

President Roosevelt, in the main, is now striving to remove uncertainties and to inspire business and industrial confidence — although some harp upon his off-hand remark that he would like to see TVA duplicated all over the continent.

Leaders lately in close touch with the President's right-bower, Donald R. Richberg, tell me that he gives whole-hearted assurance that the governmental policy now is to go forward hand in hand with industry in a determined effort to expand employment. Experience has modified the views of the once radical Richberg.

Richberg and Clay Williams are doing more than any other Roosevelt associates to reassure men of affairs that they can now go ahead with increased courage.

Thus far, however, economic developments continue distinctly mixed. Latest statistics covering volume of railway freight, electric power output, steel output, bank debits, automobile shipments, private construction, etc., reveal no definite trend, some make favorable comparisons, others unfavorable comparisons with previous weeks and with 12 months ago.

Similarly, New York Stock Exchange quotations have been irregular, slightly better one day, slightly weaker the next day. Bonds exhibit modest improvement.

Commodity prices gained a little ground on balance last week, although here also advances were not unaccompanied by recessions.

Organized labor leaders declare that unemployment is substantially greater than 12 months ago and that relief needs have become more acute.

On the other hand, our foreign trade is heavier than at any time since the spring of 1931.

There you have a picture consisting of lights and shades.

Those of us who see possibilities for very notable progress during the coming year—provided Washington continues to enlist the cooperation of industry—are impressed by the vast savings still owned by many millions of individuals and families.

Savings in American banks show their first annual increase since 1930. They total $21,867,666,000, an increase for the year of $742,132,000. Depositors also have risen 299,732 to 39,562,174 or 1⅛ for each family in the land.

Moreover all but 1¾ per cent of the eleven million people owning assets of building and loan associations at the beginning of 1930 still have savings in these organizations.

Also, of the total life insurance companies assets at the opening of 1930, paid in by some 55,000,000 people, 98.5 were safe at the end of 1933.

These figures show that the vast majority of Americans are far from "broke," that, indeed, many have withstood four years of depression extremely well.

Then, consider all the pent up demand for durable and capital goods, and perhaps you may understand why the writer believes that there is room for most impressive economic progress, room for vigorous return of prosperity during the coming year.

SHARE PRICES EASY IN DULL TRADING

New York, Dec. 3—Reaction ruled the stock market from the opening gong today and the list closed on a highly irregular note.

Profit-taking after the recent extensive rise was the dominant note in speculative circles, and effectively checked various efforts to resume the rise. At first low-priced stocks, then later, aviation, rails and some of the utilities were pushed ahead, but the rest of the list refused to follow and the advances were short-lived.

STEEL OUTPUT

News from the business world continued encouraging, with steel operations rising to a new high for the current advance. This fell flat as an influence.

Losses were generally limited, rarely going to a point or so, and volume fell to the lowest level in some time.

Some of the building shares like Johns Manville and U. S. Gypsum gave ground easily. Pennsylvania and Atchison weer firm in the rails. U. S. Steel was down nearly a point at one time. Consolidated Gas was in demand in the utilities. Blue chip industrials like du Pont and American Can were easy.

Motors were sluggish throughout, as were the liquors. Mining stocks weer firm most of the time. Equipments were lower. Trading was dull to the end.

WORK PROGRAM

Most of the communications stocks were not particularly disturbed by the opening of hearings at Washington before the Federal Communications Commission, which are intended to develop information for the guidance of Congress in framing legislation relative to mergers in this field.

The financial district was especially interested in word from Warm Springs that the President was studying the practicability of tentative plans to transfer relief problems from the dole category to a work program. It was generally felt that if the new plans are approved, the housing policy, already enunciated by the administration, will be greatly expanded and will, in the long run, involve little actual cost to the government.

The majority of observers, while not too sure about the immediate trends in equities, continued to express confidence in the long-term possibilities of the market. These hold that either the steady improvement in business and industry, or drastic currency inflation, brought about by the mounting government debt and unbalanced budget, will make it more profitable to hold stocks than cash.

Value of Stocks Shows Increase

New York, Dec. 3—The market value of 50 representative stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange at the close of business for the week ended December 1 was $12,163,496,500, an increase of $192,771,750, or 1.61 per cent, as compared with the market value of $11,970,724,750 at the close of the preceding week, according to a compilation by Paul H. Davis & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange.

At the close of the corresponding week a year ago, the same 50 stocks had a market value of $12,902,516,750, indicating a decrease during the year of $739,020,250, or 5.73 per cent.

Dollar Higher at Close in London

London, Dec. 3 (AP)—The United States dollar appreciated 1⅝ cents to the pound today, closing at 4.95 13-16 as compared to Saturday's close of 4.97 7-16 to the pound.

The opening was at 4.96⅝.

The gain was due to a demand for commercial purposes, the payment of dollar securities bought by Britons, and a reported repatriation of American funds.

Gold currencies were firm and the French franc sold at 75.25 to the pound as compared with Saturday's close of 75.46.

Irene Learns Society Is Surprising

CHAPTER XV

Irene had reached the high places and, like others before her, found there disenchantment.

The younger group, of course, were gay. But Irene soon perceived her mistake. She had really married into the best people and found them fusty and provincial. The crowd she had heretofore considered the "best people," it turned out, were the despised nouveau riche. She had succeeded in her desires, unfortunately beyond her expectations.

The people who amused her, and whom she liked, Dirk disliked. She was forced to cultivate two sets; the set she played around with during the day when she had leisure, and Dirk's set, whom she saw socially evenings and week-ends. She was not slow in discovering that the latter group were not making a pet of her.

True, Mrs. Terhune was always gracious, as was Cecily, but outside of their weekly dinner at the Terhunes they did not invite her to come in. There was a standing invitation to drop in whenever she liked, but Irene was standoffish. She'd heard with rage what some one she would have liked to know had dropped in at the Terhune's for tea.

"Oh, Ces," she said, disappointed, "why didn't you call me up? I should have loved to meet the Countess."

"I'm sorry, Irene," Cecily was sincerely contrite, "but she just blew in unexpectedly and it never occurred to me to phone you."

Nor did Irene ever really get to know her mother-in-law. At first Irene dismissed her as a simple, inconsequential soul, but as she got to know her she perceived that there was a depth to Mrs. Terhune that escaped her. Now, if Mrs. Terhune had looked at Irene through a lorgnette, Irene could have handled her superbly. But Mrs. Terhune didn't even own a lorgnette. She wore silver-bowed spectacles when she read.

IRENE STUDIES FRENCH

But she played the piano beautifully, attended concerts and sincerely loved the very music that bored Irene. Mrs. Terhune spoke French as easily as English (Irene was secretly learning French, too). But it was her simplicity that baffled Irene, her unpretentiousness. Pretty soon, of course, Irene gave up trying to understand the Terhunes, but she felt a sense of defeat that was rankling, because it was foreign to her.

Irene had, with her usual thoroughness, overcome her lack of formal education; she was amazingly well informed on matters of art, literature, music, finance, politics. Let someone mention a book or a painting or even a scientific formula that was unknown to Irene and she was indefatigable in looking it up to its very source; she acquainted herself with all its angles. She had the gift of a facile memory, and she had, in her avidity to learn, really acquired knowledge.

But it was not learning for learning's sake. There was no love lost in the process, no delight in exploring new fields. Rather, to Irene, her education was a chore, a bitterly hard chore, that had to be done—and done quickly and well.

She had been inordinately successful. She had acquired knowledge, wealth, culture and now position and love. If there was no humor in her outlook, no easy gaiety in her manner, she had never seriously missed the loss.

But she was stumped by the Terhunes. Sensibly she decided to ignore them. But the hurt she received at their hands, unintentional and unconscious on their part, rankled in her soul. That and—worse—Dirk's stubborn refusal to give up his social work connections and go back to his pob at John Kayle's, began to tell on Irene. She knew her strongest hold on Dirk was physical

DIRK IS STUBBORN

But in his sober moments he was a stranger to her. No lure could shake his determination to keep on in his work. He tried to explain it to her; tried to make her understand his point of view. They had discussed it before their marriage and she had then seemed to accept it. What he couldn't understand was her reversal of mind now. He felt he had a gift for propaganda. He had found, after years of sterile selling, vital work.

He was pathetically eager for her to understand. She feigned an interest in it but each week she only saw that he was losing seven hundred dollars—she had reduced it to the most elementary aspect of the case in her estimation—and she raged within.

She began to think of him as selfish, stubborn, mulish. If he really loved her he would do as she wanted. With an additional seven hundred dollars each week, she could snap her fingers at Anastasia's Fifty-seventh street; she could take her place in the society she craved; it would mean freedom, independence, life for her.

The frown between her eyes deepened. Bitterly she reflected that she hadn't found the satisfaction in her marriage she had expected. And it was all because of Dirk. It became almost an obsession with her to force him to relinquish his stupid and costly ideals, but the worst of it was she couldn't storm and scream as she did with her brother.

She had to work tactfully, carefully. She had to find a loophole to crawl into and start her siege from a vantage point. And now into this project she began to pour all her vital energy, her steely determination. In a way it was grim fun, for Irene loved a good fight.

To look young was Agnes Masker's one consuming passion since her marriage. Each morning she scanned her face earnestly in a magnifying mirror to detect lines or sagging muscles. A blemish or a pimple was enough to put her in a mood of frenzied apprehension. Conscientiously she brushed her fine rather thin hair 150 times each night. She coated her teeth with bicarbonate of soda to counteract acid mouth and the recession of her gums. She massaged and patted and rubbed practically every inch of her body to keep it in form.

USES BEAUTY AIDS

She knew, of course, that the Anastasia beauty preparations were futile in real beauty aid. She knew that the best cleansing cream is simple, unscented, inexpensive theatrical cold cream that comes in homely tin boxes. She knew that the most effective astringent for face and neck is witch hazel and cold water. Yet each day found her trying new lotions, hopefully experimenting with new beauty aids.

Securely locked in her bathroom, she covered her face with a clay beauty pack of the color and consistency of mud. It was highly recommended by Rudolph Valentino. She knew the value of paid testimonials, yet she hoped against hope that this beauty clay might be the panacea she was seeking.

She took Anastasia facials in her private office and she had her eyebrows plucked, her hair waved and her fingernails polished to a high luster. She spent hours in the chair being beautified, to the disgust of the operator who was losing valuable tips outside.

She read a Christian Science tract—she became interested in science—that true beauty came from within. She began to develop sweetness. She read poetry conscientiously in her free moments.

She bought simple girlish jersey frocks — schoolgirl frocks — with Peter Pan collars. She entered on a debate with Carl and her sisters that lasted months—should she or should she not bob her hair? Sometimes Irene would cry out in exasperation, "For heaven's sake, bob it and stop jawing about it!"

Agnes would flare up in return; then she would guiltily remember that she must overcome irritation and keep serene if she would have real beauty. Voraciously she returned to her reading, to her "lessons" in the Scripture.

She clung to Carl desperately. When they walked together she fairly hung on his arm. She arranged it so that his office was at her branch and managed to meet him daily for lunch as well as dinner. She called him up half a dozen times a day, tracing his movements from branch to branch.

If her affections were irksome, Carl gave no indication of it. In truth, he was surprised and flattered at her passion for him. Because she was obsessed with poetry, he began again to write verse. These Agnes cherished more tenderly than jewels. Unknown to him, she mailed his verse to the magazines and was pained and surprised when they were returned. Now her plan was to publish them herself in a volume. Of course he would dedicate the volume to her. To be the wife of a poet! It really was a very special privilege. Agnes, privately, began to think of herself as some one quite exalted.

32 CLOISTERED NUNS OCCUPY NEW HOME

Hailed by Cardinal O'Connell as actual saints in his sermon of dedication, the nuns pray 20 times each day for the expiation of the sins of the world.

Four members of the community, known as externes, alone maintain contact with the outside world. The nuns are visited by relatives, but four times a year and then talk with them from behind a screened enclosure.

Under their vows the nuns live a life of poverty, abstaining from meat at all times and eating fish only on high feast days. They live from the proceeds of the sale of altar breads, vestments and paintings.

In turning over the keys of the monastery to Mother Columba head of the order, Cardinal O'Connell said:

"If we but use our lives rationally, avoid evil and put less emphasis on worldly problems, then our short lives here on earth will be much happier.

"Thousands of people will go by this beautiful structure daily. It will recall to many the life of Saint Clare, the founder of the order, who did so much for womanhood. She taught them how to live their lives of poverty and to prepare for eternity.

"While people are passing over the great avenue in front of this new monastery, these nuns will be cloistered within its walls, praying for the world. They are constantly interceding for the rest of the world. They assume that responsibility. They are close to God and they are happy. They are, in actuality, saints."

In the consecration and blessing of the new building, Cardinal O'Connell was assisted by the Rev. Harry M. O'Connor of the Cathedral of the Holy Cross, master of ceremonies; the Rev. Jeremiah F. Minihan, his secretary, and a group of Franciscan fathers.

'Demon Rum' Wins Battle, Everett Clergy Hushed

With Everett clergymen apparently having dropped their battle for a recount in the liquor vote of November 6, James E. Paisley, restaurant owner and member of the registrars of voters, was in the position today of having invited himself to a ministers' meeting—with no meeting to attend.

For weeks the liquor controversy has been raging in Everett, ever since license won by a mere 327 votes. Petitions for a recount of the vote were circulated and many more than the required signatures were obtained.

The petitions were ruled out, however, on a legal flaw discovered by City Solicitor W. Henry Finnegan. A week ago yesterday, various clergymen delivered blasts from their pulpits against the liquor situation and said they would hold a meeting in the matter of attempting to overthrow the vote.

This meeting, it was announced by Paisley, he would attend and would tell the clergymen what and where the evils of the Everett liquor situation are.

But today, however, the fight apparently had blown out the window. The Rev. Henry G. Lane, pastor of the First Baptist Church, who has been one of the leaders in the battle for a recount, said today that so far as he is concerned nothing further will be done.

Yesterday, in the same pulpits where denunciation was voiced a week ago and court action threatened, the liquor question was not even mentioned.

A week ago, in the Catholic Church of the Immaculate Conception, the Rev. Father Hartigan, a curate, delivered a sermon in which a replied to many rumors about the liquor situation which had come to his ears.

With this public reply to the rumors, the matter is dead with him. Today he declared:

"I am not further interested in it at this time."

FORD AID SEES SIX-HOUR DAY

Detroit, Dec. 3—A close associate of Henry Ford and official of the Ford Motor Company, William J. Cameron, said in an address last night that the six-hour day will come to industry and suggested that "a rational conception of money" might be the key to industrial rejuvenation.

Cameron declared the six hour day for industry must come "because work is plentiful and production is ample," and not, he said, "out of a despairing belief that scarcity and poverty will be the general rule.

"This country is overflowing with work waiting to be done," said Cameron, "its entire equipment has become obsolete in the last five years and will have to be replaced."

Auto Thief Suspect Arrested at Wake

Justice Union Open to All

By Universal Service

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 3—Vigorous denial that his "National Union for Social Justice" is under Catholic domination was broadcast by the Rev. Father Charles E. Coughlin.

Decrying the idea that the organization should "function for one class or one creed or one race," the priest asserted:

"It were better that God should silence my tongue than I be a party to such a miscarriage of social justice."

Although he did not state the number of memberships enrolled in the organization, Father Coughlin expressed optimism for its future. He declared:

"I am not worried whether or not we will have five million members. These past two weeks have indicated that our membership will surpass that number."

Jewish Charities Fund at $400,000

Los Angeles, Dec. 3—Presenting to stockholders the result of financial operations for the fiscal year ended August 25, 1934, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., and subsidiaries, through President Harry M. Warner, reports an operating loss, after deducting all charges, including interest, amortization and depreciation, of $2,530,514.

While the loss is still quite sizeable, it represents distinct progress in the rehabilitation of the company when compared with a deficit of $6,291,748 for the fiscal year ended August 26, 1933, and $14,095,054 in the year ended August 27, 1932.

Substantial betterment in the company's financial position is further reflected in the consolidated balance sheet in the item covering mortgages and funded debts. As of August 25, 1934, this account stood at $86,487,734, compared with $90,627,931 on the comparative 1933 date; $96,922,501 in 1932, and $104,898,927 on August 29, 1931, a reduction of $18411,193 within the three-year period.

CASH GAIN SHOWN

Funded indebtedness due within one year aggregated $15,121,200, including $2,943,200 of sinking fund and mortgage installment payments.

DAVIES CONTRACT

President Warner regards as one of the company's outstanding achievements of the year the right to distribute the pictures of Miss Marion Davies. In this connection he says:

"We are pleased to inform you that after January 1, 1935, there will be added to our releases the productions produced by us under a contract with Cosmopolitan corporation. This contract assures us of the services of Marion Davies as a star and the right to acquire for motion pictures the magazine stories controlled by Cosmopolitan."

Warner Brothers and its subsidiaries operate 388 theaters located in 21 states.

LIVING "DOLL" GAINS WEIGHT

Stevenson, Wash., Dec. 3—By eating a dozen times a day and crying only once every 24 hours, Jacqueline Jackson has increased her weight 6 2-3 per cent in two weeks but she isn't worried about her figure as yet. She weighs only 16 ounces, counting the gain.

Jacqueline's chief interest in life besides the medicine dropper which serves as her milk bottle, is her tiny thumb, which she sucks with great enthusiasm. Her entire hand is no larger than the end of an ordinary adult thumb and she is only 11½ inches long.

The Stevenson Emergency Hospital force experienced its greatest thrill November 24 when the premature infant was born to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jackson of Cascade Locks, Ore.

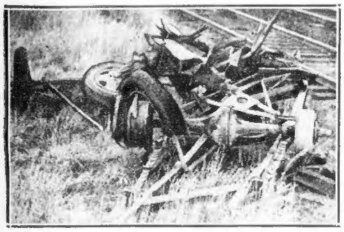
Stalin's Order to U. S. Communists

"The American Communist Party must be improved and Bolshevized. For that end we must work in order to forge real revolutionary cadres and a real revolutionary leadership of the proletariat, capable of leading the many millions of the American working class toward the revolutionary class struggles."

Stalin, in address May 6, 1929.

Death Takes No Holiday At Grade-Crossings

It Never Will Until They Are Eliminated



FOUR WERE KILLED IN THIS GRADE CROSSING WRECK.

SOME ghastly accident at railroad GRADE CROSSINGS is a too frequent happening. Where highways and tracks intersect, death is always lurking for motorists and pedestrians.

In 1932, 1525 persons were killed and 3989 injured by trains at these points.

Every year takes its heavy toll of life from the same cause—a toll due in part to carelessness of drivers, but one which could be absolutely eliminated if grade crossings were abolished.

The government is spending billions of dollars on relief and work projects—many of doubtful utility.

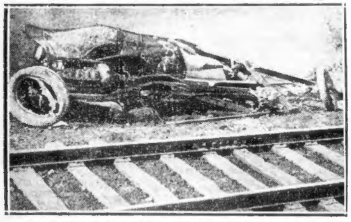
It passes out money with a lavish hand for landscaping, art study, mural decoration, the mass-murder of little pigs, the plowing-under of crops, and Heaven only knows what other enterprises of similar character.

It also is borrowing incredible sums and passing them out as a dole, for which no return is made in the form of labor.

The American people may well ask: "Why not put some of this money into permanently improving the railroads and highways by doing away with grade crossings and the menace that these points constitute to life and safety?"

That would create jobs.

It would also help the railroads by making it possible for them to operate high-speed trains of the streamlined type in place of low-speed trains which cannot compete with trucks and buses.



TWO LIVES BLOTTED OUT AS TRAIN HIT CAR.

And most important of all, it would END deadly smash-ups.

That seems a better use of Government funds than many of the weird "recovery" projects which brain trust theorizers at Washington have evolved. Congress should authorize it as soon as it meets in January.

Man Versus Moose

Test Case to Decide Rights

Robert Pendleton of Rockland, Me., was hunting deer.

A moose charged out of the bushes, Pendleton relates, whereupon he was compelled to shoot the animal in self-defence.

Moose are savage this season, numerous instances having come to light where they have pursued people. One of the hunted was a game warden who had thrown stones to get the animal out of the way.

When Pendleton reported his case to the wardens, he was called into court and fined $25.

An appeal has been taken, and the Maine supreme court will be asked to decide the legality of defending one's self when attacked by a vicious animal.

Loans to Industry

Federal Reserve Men Aid Drive

The Industrial Advisory Committee of the First Federal Reserve District, with headquarters in Boston, is permitting no stone to remain unturned in its drive to facilitate loans to industry.

It deserves praise and encouragement for its latest effort to engage the attention of those who may require funds to expand or conduct their business.

A pamphlet has been prepared explaining the aims of the committee and the requirements for obtaining a loan. Business men should send for it and learn how they may do their part to speed recovery.

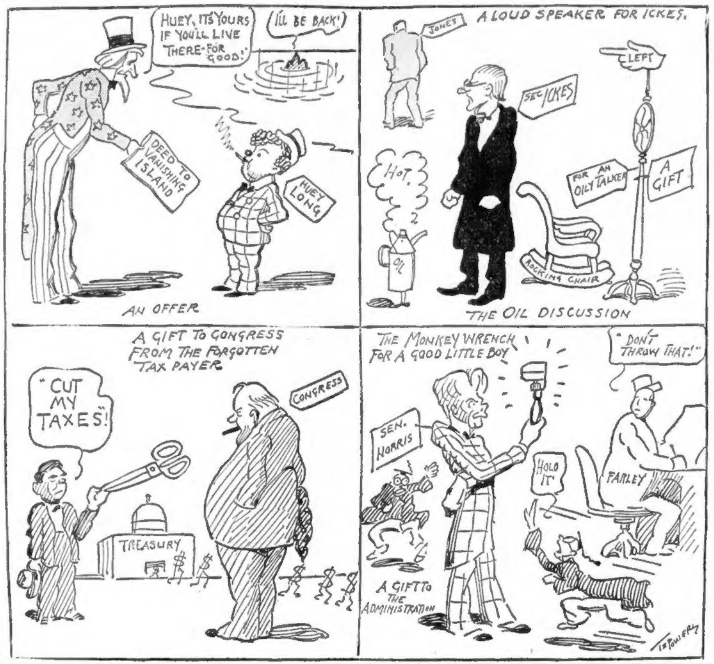
Christmas Gifts -:- What Will Santa Claus Bring YOU? -:- By T. E. Powers



Listen, World! :-: :-: By Elsie Robinson

The Truth About Marriage

These radiant youngsters, racing to the altar. If I could, here's what I'd like to say to them—

Elsie Robinson

So you're going to be married? That's great! Go to it! Go to it eagerly, joyfully, proudly! Give it everything you have—all your tenderness and laughter, all your faith and fire!

Don't be cautious—don't be timid—don't hold anything back. Love with all you've got. But even as you do, remember this—

Marriage isn't a miracle-worker. Nine out of ten of the delightful things you've heard about it aren't true. No marriage vow has ever yet made "two hearts beat as one." YOU'RE TWO SEPARATE PEOPLE NOW AND YOU WILL ALWAYS REMAIN SO.

NDIVIDUALITY FIRST

You'll never be one. You shouldn't even try to be one. You should try to share interests—try to understand—try to play the game together. But you should never try to be one—or expect the other fellow to try. For the most sacred thing in life, and the most important thing in marriage, is INDIVIDUALITY.

You fell in love with each other because you were individuals. You excited and charmed each other because you were different.

You reached out toward partnership because you offered each other something new and strange—something that would answer the other's need, complete the other's life.

Respect and cherish that difference now. Don't spoil things by trying to be like each other—by trying to force the other fellow into your mold.

Try, instead, to remain a little of mystery to each other—to keep the adventure of your differentness.

PART OF LIFE

Go on being yourselves. Go on developing. Go on LIVING. Nine out of ten marriage failures happen because people stop living when they marry, and thereafter devote all their energies to being Mr. and Mrs.

Go on growing. Grow in every way, not just in a love way. Love is a fine thing, but it isn't everything in life. Nor is love enough. The person who only loves is lopsided. The life that puts all its best bets on love is headed for tragedy. Grow all over. Think new thoughts. Find new interests. Make new experiments.

Do not expect to completely understand each other or always like each other. You are bound to be cool to each other at times, indifferent—sometimes actually hostile. These things are natural. They are the normal ebb and flow of emotion. They will come no matter whom you marry.

They would come with any interest.

Do not expect marriage to be an answer to anything—or a solution—or an ending. Regard it always as life's most challenging adventure, and keep it as such.

OBEY THESE LAWS

Sometimes, like all adventures, it will be grim, sometimes glorious. But mostly just plugging along. Don't blame misery or monotony on marriage. You'd have had them if you had remained single.

LIVE FULLY AND GIVE FULLY—these are the two fundamental laws of marriage. Obey these laws and your marriage is bound to be a successful adventure.

But suppose the other fellow doesn't? Still, FOR YOU, it will have been a success. For loving always pays. We may betray love, but love never betrays us. We are always richer for it—always stronger and wiser and tenderer.

"Majoring" in Real Life -:- -:- By Winifred Black

Winifred Black

Someone had filled in the application and given me as a reference, so the organization sent me the form so I could see just exactly what the requirements for a job were.

Rather interesting that printed form—so neat and orderly, so well thought out and all.

I could just see the calm executive who sent it out, rather young I suppose and not more than a year or so out of college, but oh, so earnest and so wise in all the theories.

One question in that blank filled my soul with unholy joy.

"Number one. What was your university?

"Number two. What did you major in?"

Now isn't that entrancing—what did you major in?

Most of the common or garden people who will need the intelligent service of that relief organization wouldn't know what that question meant, not if their lives depended upon it, would they?

UNIVERSITY OF LIFE

But it's rather an interesting idea after all, come to think of it.

We're all of us graduates of some kind of university.

Some of us have gone to a co-ed college and some to places like Vassar and Bryn Mawr—or Smith—but a whole lot of us are still undergraduates in the great University of Life, and life experience.

Some of us started out as gay as birds, determined to sing all the way down the road or up the road which ever way we were going.

And some were a little out of tune from the very start, but we all had to take the schooling whether we liked it or not and here we are getting ready for some kind of a great test some day.

Or have we been "majoring" in envy and jealousy, or petty spite, you and I?

ABOUT "MAJORING"

Have we chosen our friends because we like them, and they like us, or because they knew the "right people," and could give us a life in the social world?

Have we liked people for what they are and not for what they have?

Have we majored in discontent, in a restless aching to be someone we can never be, or go somewhere we never need hope to go?

Are we "majoring" in contentment with simple things?

Quite an interesting question after all, isn't it?

My friend, Elizabeth, oh, she's "majoring" in success, or what she calls success and she's made a good thing of it, too, but I can't see that she's a bit happier than Sister Jane who just "majors" in kindness.

"Wouldn't it be a good thing for us all if we had a "test" once every year and sort of realized just exactly what we are 'majoring' in?

Copyright, 1934, for the Boston Evening American.

Isn't It So?

There can be no good government unless the state possesses good men with human knowledge and a sense of value.

A true gentleman is a rarer thing than some of us think for.

Pitch a lucky man into the river and he will come up with a fish in his mouth.

By Edgar A. Guest

HUMAN ODDITY

What foolish things we mortals do!
For instance, there are people who Spend fortunes on their houses great
And more to men to decorate
The walls with pictures, old and rare,
Till beauty blossoms everywhere.
They load the shelves with costly books;
Hire butlers, valets, maids and cooks,
Yet in surroundings such as these
Where heart and mind should be at ease
And joy be known and laughter ring,
They spend their time in quarreling.

How strange it is and sadly true
That often there are people who
With all that human hearts desire
Which gold and silver can acquire
Will search for beauty when they roam
And still be blind to it at home.
With art they'll fill each room and hall,
Yet get no pleasure from it all.
With bindings gay they'll line their shelves
Yet never quite be gay themselves,
Because some silly, trifling thing
Forever sets them quarreling.

Stars and Stripes

Cyrus Edwin Dallin, noted Arlington sculptor, and his wife, recently jointly observed their 73d birthdays. It's unusual nowadays for couples to agree even on their birthdays!

Professor George W. Pierce of Harvard has an instrument that brings out cricket sounds inaudible to the ear. What we'd like to have is an invention so we couldn't hear crickets when we try to sleep.

It will be long before "Old Man Depression" is the "Forgotten Man," but at least we seem to be getting rid of him.

Maine opens up its liquor stores shortly. Some optimistic persons expect them to compete quite successfully with the bootleggers.

WRITES ABOUT

Running From Truth

Strange things have happened to the merry crowd of Gods and Goddesses and all their near and distant uncles, aunts, cousins and further hangers-on, who forty centuries ago dwelled in such delightful lack of harmony on the top of Mount Olympus.

Hendrik Van Loon

Take the case of the lovely Princess Psyche. Condemned by jealous Venus (the old dame spent most of her time being jealous, and most of the time she had perfectly good reason to be) to fall in love with the most despicable of all monsters, she went through all sorts of strange adventures but ended by marrying Cupid and by getting her name in a very conspicuous place in the Olympian Social Register.

That this lady, the very embodiment of the ideal of love, should afterwards have been identified by the Greeks with the human soul, shows that the contemporaries of Homer knew what they were talking about.

TOO MUCH LEARNING

But then, alas, they learned reading and writing and arithmetic, and they began to classify and divide and sub-divide and pigeon-hole the entire universe, and in this way poor Psyche's name got incorporated into a vast variety of scientific subjects.

There was psychiatry, the science that deals with people who are already crazy, and psycho-analysis, the science that deals with people who soon will be crazy, and psychical research, which makes a specialty of spooks and haunted houses.

DIAGNOSES TROUBLES

And psychopaths, who make a living by curing crazy people of their psychoses by means of psycho-therapy, and a whole lot of other psychics and psychogeneses and psycho-physics and psychomancies and psycho's this and psycho's that, all of them available to you in any learned hand-book under the general heading of psychology, which is the study of all the higher functions of those beings that are supposed to be endowed with a soul (including the human race.)

I don't know what started this strange detour through the twilight zone of the psychological realm, but it may have been a stray remark which I recently overheard from a taxi window. Somewhere on Broadway in the fifties two well-furred females were discussing each other's matrimonial difficulties.

And just when the green light was turned on, the genuine mink said to the imitation mink, "Well, my dear, when you really come down to brass tacks, all our troubles were merely psychological."

Little boys and girls, learning their grammar, might do worse than study the meaning of the word "merely" in this particular sentence.

But even old and wise heads should bow before the sublime resignation with which a much harried lady in a very expensive fur coat got rid of all her troubles and worries by dropping them quietly into the general garbage-can of the Department of Plants and Psychology, as if that settled anything at all.

This is an old and well known trick of the human race, this habit of trying to get rid of unpleasant facts by giving them a different and more agreeable name. This desire to find a safe retreat behind a false front.

MENTAL COWARDICE

The other day, in a highly useful and intelligent talk on hygiene, a doctor of eminent standing and respectability referred to the most dangerous of all our social afflictions by its scientific name. The storm of indignation that immediately arose from thousands of indignant parents is still filling his fan-mail with a highly spiced variety of unprintable epithets.

Those self-same parents, whose sons and daughters he may have saved from the ghastliest of all ailments, are outraged because this physician had the co[illegible] to call skunk-cabbage skunk-cabbage, and did not refer to that nefarious weed as a member of the rose family.

It is, of course, a form of mental cowardice, and it would take a better psychologist than I happen to be to suggest a suitable remedy.

To run away from the truth by hiding behind the stately walls of some old and picturesque ruin may bring a temporary feeling of relief, but it is full of danger. For the next day we may discover that the place was overgrown with poison ivy.

Labor's Shortened Week

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GLOBE TROTTER OF HEARST METROTONE NEWS

The forty-hour week is here, and it looks as if it had come to stay. Here are city, state and national committees working out plans and programs for the use of leisure time.

Here is the nationally organized Leisure League, headed by James S. Stanley, riding seven hundred hobbies, spawning books on arts, crafts and useful techniques for the multitude.

MACHINE DOES IT

The machine has done it. For the first time in history, sociologists and educators grapple with the phenomenon of mass leisure—five hours each day after the working stint, with time allowed for eating, sleeping and traveling to and from work.

This huge temporal budget may go to gin, crap-shooting, thumb twiddling, wool-gathering, necking, hit and run driving, pool playing, and the like, if man is left to his baser instincts, leaving nobody any better off.

Lambast the machine, if you will, for making all this bother out of something which used to be no trouble at all, especially on pay-day, but don't stop there. Triangulate this age with another century. One good way to do this is to pick up, not a literary effusion, but a soundly documented book of another day.

It was written by a pious and anonymous English gentlewoman, taking account of child labor in the mills. It is called "Wrongs of Woman," and here is its testimony of conditions 100 years ago:

"It is not uncommon to begin at six and even five a. m. and to go on until two or three in the morning; sometimes from 4 a. m. to twelve at night. Some witnesses, who were in a position to freely state the facts, mention that they have for three months successively worked twenty hours out of the twenty-four.

"It is common practice, on particular occasions, such as drawing-room, wedding or mourning orders, for the work to be continued all night. One witness worked continually, without going to bed, from four o'clock Thursday morning to half past two on Sunday morning."

CHILDREN STUNTED

And as for children! Read:

"Stunted in their growth, bony, pallid and most wretchedly unhealthy in their looks; filthy beyond expression in their persons, with scarcely rags enough to hold decently together, these miserable little beings appear conscious of but two objects capable of attracting their notice beyond the work about which their poor, dirty little hands are incessantly moving.

"One of these is the very small fireplace, where an exceedingly scanty portion of fuel is just emitting smoke enough to prove that fire smoulders beneath. Towards this many a longing look is cast, while the blue lips quiver, and the teeth chatter, and the fingers are well-nigh disabled from the benumbing influence of cold.

The little book tells about it:

"'Godfrey's Cordial' is a mixture of boiled treacle and water, with the addition of a certain portion of opium. Mothers purchase it for the purpose of keeping their children quiet, or for 'sleeping them' while the mother is at work. Many children are killed by it. Some waste away to skeletons, and their sufferings are prolonged; others die more easily."
